$50,000 HOLE IN ONE —'I CRIED A LITTLE'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Joe Campbell, New York City pro, today scored the first hole in one, worth $50,000 in the Palm Springs $100,000 desert golf classic.

Campbell's ace came on the 205-yard, par three, fifth hole. He used a three iron.

Campbell was unable to contain himself. He jumped up and down on the green. "I guess I even cried a little," he said.

If no other pro duplicates his feat, Campbell will take all of the $50,000 prize. Should more than one pro make a hole-in-one, the pot will be divided.

Loser on the deal is Lloyds of London. The insurance company gambled a $4,000 policy fee against the $50,000 payoff.

New 'Snow Goose' Rocket Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—The Defence Research Board plans to launch next year a new high-altitude research rocket called the "Snow Goose," informants said today.

The rocket will be a follow-on to the "Black Brant" rocket, four of which were fired last fall from Fort Churchill, Man.

The "Snow Goose," it is planned, will be essentially the same as the "Black Brant" except that it will reach a higher altitude and carry a nose-cone full of research instruments to study the outer atmosphere.

The "Black Brant" is a propulsion test vehicle—that is, it is a rocket used to test solid propellants developed by the Defence Research Board at its establishment at Valcartier, Quebec.

More firings of the "Black Brant" are planned before the "Snow Goose" launching.

The rockets, fired last fall, reached an altitude of some 70 miles. The "Snow Goose" is intended to go twice as high. It would have the same casing as the "Black Brant" but modified fins to control its flight and a different nose cone to carry about 150 pounds of instruments.

Conciliation Asked

OTTAWA (UPI)—Non-operating unions have asked for a federal conciliation board in connection with their current wage negotiations with the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways. Labor Minister Michael Starr said today.

Allies In, Rebels Out Of Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—President de Gaulle today strengthened his cabinet by promoting his steadfast supporters after ousting Jacques Soustelle, chief spokesman for the Algerian rightists.

The expected cabinet reshuffle was brought on by the crisis which followed the rightist insurgent rising in Algeria.

Also ousted was Bernard Cornet-Gentile, minister of communications, who like Soustelle, had wanted to compromise with the rebellious French settlers.

Those were the only two ministers leaving the cabinet, but altogether seven ministers were eliminated or shifted.

The new men named to the cabinet are Louis Terrenoire, head of the Gaullist Union for the New Republic, who takes over the ministry of information, and Jean Foyer, a UNR member of the National Assembly, who was named secretary of state for relations with the French community.

Pierre Guillaumat, minister of defence, was shifted to minister-delegate charged with atomic research. The defense ministry went to Pierre Messmer, long-time career administrator.

Roger Frey, who served as information minister, was promoted to minister-delegate. His duties were not immediately announced. Robert Le court remains as a minister of state charged with relations with Parliament, the Sahara and overseas departments and territories.

The foreign minister remains in the hands of career diplomat Maurice Couve de Murville.

The small band says the land is worth between $400 and $500 an acre.

Chief Peters said a highway department official said he would recommission a $1,500 settlement. But the department refused the recommendation.

Thomas Dohm, Vancouver lawyer representing the band, said the 5.32 acres of scrub land may become the basis for a test case on the right of the Indian Act to permit Indian reserve lands to be expropriated for public works.

Bolivian Airliner Plunges in Lagoon

LA PAZ, Bolivia (Reuters)—Sixty persons were killed today when a Bolivian airliner crashed into a lagoon on a flight between La Paz and Cochabamba. There were no survivors.

The airliner crashed 160 miles south of La Paz.

The crash—the worst air disaster ever recorded in Bolivia—was thought to have been caused by an engine explosion.

The DC-4 airliner, a four-engined aircraft, was owned by Lloyd Aerea Boliviana.

CRASHES AFTER TAKEOFF

The plane crashed a few minutes after takeoff from Cochabamba.

The passengers included 45 adults and 10 children. Among the latter were five babies.

Most if not all those aboard were believed to be Bolivians. No passenger list was available immediately.

The plane was piloted by Joaquin Lobos, the airline's chief pilot with years of experience flying over this country's rugged mountain terrain.

1960's Toll

NEW YORK (CP)—The crash of a Bolivian airliner at La Paz, Bolivia, today, with 60 persons, was the fifth commercial aviation disaster of the year. It brought the death toll to 246.

The previous accidents were:

Jan. 6—A National Airlines plane crashed near Bolivia, N.C., killing 34 persons.

Jan. 18—A Capital Airlines plane crashed near Holdcroft, Va., killing 50.

Jan. 19—A Scandinavian jet airliner crashed near Ankara, Turkey, killing 42.

Jan. 21—A Colombian airliner crashed in Jamaica, killing 60.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O God, help me to be sincere in word and deed and to live what I profess. May I avoid every form of sham or hypocrisy knowing that what I do is far more eloquent than anything that I may say. May no one ever think less of the Christian way because I have lived unworthy of it. So may I come to the end of each day with conscience clear and with the realization that I have fulfilled Thy holy purpose in Jesus' name. Amen.

OUT FOR A COMEDY SHOW

Queen Pulls a Surprise

Police Battle Crowd

HAVANA (AP)—Wild shooting broke out near the Palace of Fine Arts today as Anastas I. Mikoyan opened the Soviet trade exposition there. The Soviet deputy premier and top Cuban officials remained in the open throughout the gunfire but were unhurt.

One person was reported hurt in the crowd of about 300, which cheered Mikoyan's speech repeatedly.

Police arrested a number of persons—one Havana radio station said there were about 20—and charged them with trying to sabotage the opening ceremonies for the exhibition, a major Soviet propaganda effort here.

The ceremonies went off as scheduled despite the shooting.

BURST FROM BALCONY

There were conflicting reports as to how the shooting started. It apparently was not an assassination attempt against Premier Fidel Castro, since he arrived later, and vigorously pumped Mikoyan's hand.

One report said the shooting was touched off by a short burst from a balcony around the corner from the Palace of Fine Arts, and police guns provided most of the fire in reply.

Another report said a short burst from a speeding car started it.

The incident lasted 10 minutes.

MIKOYAN UNRUFFLED

Mikoyan and Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos remained in a speaker's stand. The old revolutionary appeared unruffled and made his formal speech in a calm voice. Castro was at his side.

Armed guards roamed through the crowd and the exposition hall as Mikoyan spoke.

There was also a disturbance, but no gunfire at the statue of Cuba's liberator, Jose Marti, some four blocks from the Palace of Fine Arts.

Shortly before the disturbance, Mikoyan had placed a big white and red floral wreath topped by a hammer and sickle at the base of the statue.

A group of persons, identified by some in the crowd as anti-Communists, had attempted to place another wreath at the statue.

The opening of the Soviet exposition, setting the stage for talks between Mikoyan and Castro's trade-hungry government, was only slightly delayed.

A short-sleeved throng of 300 to 400, mostly Cuban laborers, had hailed Mikoyan at the wreath-placing ceremony.

"Viva Russia!" they shouted. "Viva Mikoyan!"

TRADE NECESSARY

Only a few hours after Mikoyan's arrival Thursday, the left-wing president of Cuba's national bank, Ernesto Che Guevara, told a television audience that "trade is necessary, and for us very necessary."

United States officials in Washington viewed Mikoyan's visit as a move by Moscow to capitalize on the low ebb in American-Cuban relations.

They say he may have brought a raft of trade offers in anticipation of Cuban overtures. The Soviet Union already purchases sugar from Cuba, but trade relations between the two countries are otherwise spotty.

There seems to be the echo of a bullet in most Cuban cheers these days.

She slipped out of Buckingham Palace Thursday night to catch an American's dog act. The Queen laughed heartily for 45 minutes while watching Bob Williams of Malibu, Calif., put his dogs through their comedy routine at a party at Earl Mountbatten's town house. Williams said the Queen was beautiful, magnificently dressed, and hardly any jewelry. The Queen didn't need gems, he added, "her face is very healthy looking." The Queen watched the act with Mountbatten, Princess Sophia of Greece, and Lord and Lady Mountbatten. Prince Philip stayed home.

IN THE HOUSE

WITH

Norman Cribbens

The legislature was anchored down Thursday with a weighty commentary on the future of our province by Attorney-General and Trade Minister Robert Bonner.

As usual, Mr. Bonner took the weight off his report with a little dry humor.

"Most of us," he said, "go home at night to a perfect gale of TV and see more violence in 25 minutes than we experienced during the whole of the war."

He spoke, of course, as an old soldier, wounded in Sicily. But the point of his remark seemed to be that, with all the mechanical diversions we have today, British Columbians think less about their future than did our forebears of 100 years ago.

Those early British Columbians, he said, had a remarkable foresight. Their descendants were much too modest about their future.

"Don't tell me your government is modest," quipped Arthur Turner, the CCF member for Vancouver East.

"I am suggesting that we in B.C. are in for much greater things, physically and materially, than we imagine," Mr. Bonner replied.

For that reason, he felt, we should take "a broader view" of those two great power sources—the Peace River and the Columbia.

Next came a witty commentary on Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi by Mrs. Lois Hagen, the charming CCF member for Grand Forks-Greenwood.

Blue-eyed Mrs. Hagen confessed, amid laughter, that she found Mr. Gagliardi "simply fascinating." "He talks in millions of dollars," she said, "and jumps all over the province in telling us of all the great projects that are going on—but when he has finished speaking you wonder which highway you are on."

Mrs. Hagen said Mr. Gagliardi reminded her of a passage from "Alice Through the Looking Glass": "They gazed and gazed and still the wonder grew that one small head could hold all it knew."

None laughed louder than Mr. Gagliardi. "She's quite a gal," he said in the corridors. "Quite a gal."

Mrs. Hagen created more diversion by referring to John Tisdalle, the dark prophetic-looking MLA for Saanich, as "the honorable member for Sand-Wich."

Apprized of this error, she added: "I'm afraid I thought of him as a sandwich because when he spoke to us yesterday he surrounded himself with every kind of milk carton."

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz—a man with a difficult job—celebrated his birthday in the chair and received "happy returns" from every side.

Whatever its shortcomings, this is a good-humored House.

Two Out of Three U.S. Missile Score

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — United States missile teams, busy on both coasts, recorded a successful doubleheader at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and delayed fizzle at this base Thursday.

The Discoverer IX satellite rocket left its pad at Vandenberg in fine form, but officers at the California installation announced later that the rocket failed to achieve orbital velocity.

Peace Council Asks Abolition Of Atom Weapon

A delegation organized by B.C. Peace Council plans to meet members of the legislature Feb. 17 and will present a brief urging abolition of all nuclear weapons.

The legislature will be urged to adopt a resolution that the government of Canada continue efforts to achieve disarmament, including the abolition under international control of all nuclear weapons, and in the meantime to oppose their spread to countries not now possessing them, including Canada itself."

1 Dead, 5 Missing In Heavy Seas

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A steep roll by a destroyer left one of its crew dead and five others missing Thursday in the icy waters of the Atlantic off the Virginia coast.

They said they lacked information on whether the second stage separated from the first. After failing to reach orbital speed, the rocket fell back into the atmosphere.

FINAL TEST FLIGHT

In the two successful firings at the Florida cape, a Jupiter roared aloft on a final 1,500-mile test flight and a Polaris recorded its fifth straight hit on an Atlantic target 900 miles away.

The army later said the test series for the liquid-fuelled Jupiter had been completed four months ahead of time.

The Jupiter launching was the 30th for the army ballistic missile agency. Of the previous shots, 22 were rated successful, five partially so and two failures. The Jupiter soon will be deployed with NATO in Italy and Turkey.

Discoverer IX, like all—but the first Discoverer rocket, carried an instrumented capsule designed to be ejected from the orbiting second stage and snatched from the air by planes 26 hours after launching. This manoeuvre has failed every time.

'HITLER WAS RIGHT' SAYS SWASTIKA DAUBER

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — One of the two young Germans who touched off the recent wave of anti-Semitic incidents told a court here today he thinks that in some respects Adolf Hitler was right.

Arnold Strunk and Paul J. Schoenen admitted defacing the Cologne Synagogue on Christmas Eve—the act which set off a wave of similar incidents around the world.

Strunk said that, although he believes "many aspects of Hitler's Third Reich should be reintroduced in Germany," he did not agree with every act of the Hitler regime.

"I condemn the Nazi murders of Jews, but I believe Jews should not be allowed to hold high positions," he said. "When I painted swastikas on the synagogue, I wanted to give vent to my inner feelings."

B.C. FORCED, SAYS STRACHAN

'Profit in Advance' Sought From Peace

Peace River Power Development Company will only agree to develop the Peace if the end results provide huge profits to the expense of the consumer, CCF leader Robert Strachan said Thursday.

Speaking at the Esquimalt-Saanich CCF Association annual dinner, he referred to a letter filed in the legislature Wednesday by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

Signed by W. C. Mainwaring, president of PRPD Company, it states the company will only proceed with the project if it "completes satisfactory arrangements with its proposed customers."

Only by the government forcing the B.C. Power Commission to sign agreements to purchase power can this scheme go ahead as proposed, said Mr. Strachan.

"Sum total of all this is the Social Credit government has been led into making 'firm commitments' to give the Wenner-Gren company all it wants, but the company has been smart enough to leave itself in a position where it can drop the whole scheme by pleading it has no firm customers, cannot find necessary finance... and therefore is not an economic development."

Stolen Bull Found Killed In Park Area

Sidney RCMP today were investigating slaughter of a seven-month-old Hereford bull, found Thursday in John Dean Park with its throat cut and one hindquarter removed.

The bull was stolen Monday from the farm of Frank Edington, West Saanich Road.

The destroyers will leave Kobe April 14, returning home by the Great Circle route and stopping at Adak, Aleutian Islands, April 21-22. They are due back April 29.

The 300-pound bull was left to rot after the piece of meat was inexplicably torn out.

RCMP Cpl. William Stanton said "I can't understand a person doing a thing like that."

"The killing was senseless."

MANUFACTURERS' BRIEF

'Hold Taxes' Ottawa Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in its annual pre-budget briefs presented today to the government, said personal and corporate income taxes are already too high and urged that there be no further increases in the coming budget.

A delegation headed by CMA president W. H. Evans of Toronto presented briefs to the ministers of finance, national revenue and commerce.

The government was asked to take a lead in holding down costs by avoiding additions to public expenditures, at least until the federal budget allows reduction of personal and corporate income taxes to the pre-1959 level. Last year's increases, the delegation said, should be recognized as temporary.

Delegates asked the government to take steps to control imports from low-wage countries and urged that the tariff board be asked to review those sections of the customs tariff which are "out-of-date" with the purpose of establishing new simplified schedules.

Abolition or substantial reduction, as soon as revenue conditions permit, of special excise taxes on automobiles, radios, cosmetics and a variety of other goods, was recommended. Lifting of sales taxes on articles and materials entering into the cost of manufacture or production of goods was also asked.

Another recommendation asked for a new crown corporation to encourage and facilitate Canadian export trade by providing facilities for the financing of Canada exports requiring medium and long-term credits, on terms comparable and competitive, both as to duration and cost, with those available in other exporting countries.

Strike Called

LONDON (AP) — A union order Wednesday called on London subway train crews to join the Feb. 15 national rail strike.

The walkout would leave some 3,000,000 commuters without public transport, short of squeezing aboard the city's already overloaded fleet of red double-decker buses.

Trading Stamp Action
'Talked Out' of Vote

(From Times News Service)

OTTAWA — Frank Howard (CCF-Skeena) said Thursday night his private bill to outlaw trading stamps was "broomed" out of the Commons.

He made the remark as Ernest Broome (PC-Vancouver South) talked 15 minutes to the 10 p.m. adjournment hour to make sure the bill would not come to a vote.

Mr. Howard has little chance of having his bill debated again at this session of Parliament. It goes to the bottom of the list, bringing into first position for discussion the bill of Frank McGee (PC-York-Scarborough) for abolition of capital punishment for murder.

Mr. Howard attacked trading stamps as "economic punishment inflicted on a de-

Nine in Favor of Ban, 7 Against

Of 16 members who spoke on the bill, nine were in favor of banning the stamps with Howard's legislation; and seven did not approve the bill. Most of those who spoke against it admitted they weren't in favor of the stamps, but said it was a provincial matter.

The trading stamp debate echoed in a chamber occupied at times by only about 50 of the Commons' 264 members. Many of the others had fled out—some probably to begin scouring the 1960-61 spending estimates tabled at the start of the sittings by Finance Minister Fleming.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that a meeting of federal and provincial representatives will be held here Monday to start planning for the 1967 celebration of Canada's 100th anniversary of Confederation.

Erik Neilsen (PC-Yukon) reintroduced a bill which would provide for Commons representation for the districts of Franklin and Keewatin in the Northwest Territories.

He also reintroduced another bill to provide Senate representation for the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. At present, the Yukon elects a single member to the Commons and only the Mackenzie River district of the N.W.T. sends a member to Ottawa.

Civil Servants
Get Slim Hope
Of Wage Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—Civil servants clamoring for a general pay increase got no particular encouragement from 1960-61 spending estimates of the federal government tabled in the Commons Thursday.

They showed an increase of $17,600,000 in the amount for government workers' salaries, nowhere near the average 10 per cent boost recommended last fall by the civil service commission and turned down by the cabinet.

B.C. GETS $7 MILLION
'RAISE' FROM OTTAWA

OTTAWA (CP)—The provinces are to get from the federal government in the coming fiscal year about $73,900,000 more than the present year under estimates tabled in the Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Fleming.

British Columbia will get $71,975,000, $7 million more than this year's $64,900,000.

The calculated total of treasury disbursements for the year starting April 1 is $536,400,000, against $462,500,000 for the current year. The increase, it was explained, reflects growth in yields from standard taxes upon which a federal-provincial tax-sharing formula is based.

Other provinces will get: Newfoundland, $28,027,000; Prince Edward Island, $7,175,000; Nova Scotia, $39,712,000; New Brunswick, $34,405,000; Quebec, $66,624,000; Ontario, $112,441,000; Manitoba, $40,161,000; Saskatchewan, $40,860,000; Alberta, $57,335,000.

RECESSION is past and inflation is at lowest point in years, Labor Minister Starr said Thursday in a radio-TV broadcast. There were 181,000 more Canadians at work in December and 70,000 fewer out seeking jobs, he said.

Bill of Rights Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government should not try to set forth the fundamental liberties of Canadians in one rigid statute because "there is no need for a bill of rights," Walter S. Owen, past president of the Canadian Bar Association, said Thursday.

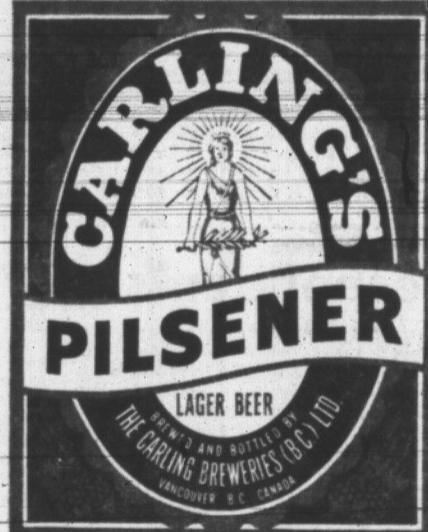

Specifically, he proposed a private bill amending the Criminal Code to make trading stamps illegal. The code now outlaws stamps that can be redeemed for cash or goods at stores where the stamps were not obtained.

It would eventually be the end of the growing of grain for export in Western Canada," he said in the Senate throne speech debate.

More of the Same

WITH SIZABLE REDUCTIONS in a number of estimates for the coming year, including defence, public works and transport, the federal Government appears to be making desperate efforts to keep expenditures down in the face of a whopping deficit.

But the "fixed charges," the huge spending on pensions and other welfare accounts which cannot be cut—on the contrary, they rise each year—have boosted the total national budget to a record $6.3 billions. All hope of keeping the Conservative election promises to reduce debt, lower taxes and otherwise ease the public burden must obviously be deferred for still another year.

The growing public debt is itself a major cause of increased expense. Interest charges will amount to $774 millions in the coming year, and the increase of $94 millions in this item alone will more than wipe out the cut in defence spending.

The defence cut might well be much larger than the estimated 5 per cent if it truly reflected the indecision of the Government. In a period of transition in armaments, with conventional arms decreasing in importance and the costly missiles and electronic defence complexes, demanding an ever greater expenditure, a large proportion of the defence dollar must be spent in an unrealistic manner. The dilemma is costly, but inescapable.

It is the financial repercussions of the estimates, however, which will most affect the country. The huge governmental expenditures, the expected deficit, and the inevitable borrowings herald a continuation of high interest rates and heavy government competition for the investor's dollar. Provinces and municipalities will take no comfort from either of these prospects.

Unless the Government can further increase taxes—thus reversing another pre-election promise—an accentuation of the problems which have plagued the banks, industry, junior governments and private would-be borrowers through the last year is in store.

The federal deficit is the core of our inflation, and the Government's continued borrowing to meet it lies at the heart of our present maladjustment. The Government has made an effort to curb national expenditures, but clearly the results will be far from significant.

School From the Driver's Seat

WHILE CANADIANS ARE ENgrossed in their discussions on what this country needs in education, somebody, says Mr. Anthony Frisch of Toronto, should ask the federal and provincial legislators what they think about the subject.

They, he points out, are the people who have the power to translate talk into action.

Mr. Frisch has asked the men in government for their views on 14 questions ranging from the adequacy of the educational system to the desirability of federal aid. About 12 per cent of those reached replied to his questionnaire. The answers furnish a sampling only and may or may not reflect majority opinion in the House of Commons and in provincial legislatures or any of them.

They do, however, supply some interesting information.

Taking the 12 per cent as a unit for analysis, the survey indicates that 72 per cent are not satisfied with the Canadian school system. (Perhaps the question should have said systems). Replies show 86 per cent think Canadian schools are falling down in mathematics, 78 per cent in science, 84 per cent in foreign languages, 64 per cent in history and 87 per cent in English.

That leaves very little room for satisfaction in basic subjects in Canadian schools.

Answers also show that 68 per cent think literature of foreign countries should be taught, that 84 per cent think art or music should be given in upper school, that 74 per cent favor psychology and introductory philosophy, and that 81 per cent would have foreign languages taught in public school.

Classes are too large, say 68 per cent of those replying to the questionnaire and almost as many think school books are too expensive.

The division of opinion is more even on whether or not teachers are underpaid in real and psychic income, 56 per cent saying they are, 44 that they are not.

Of particular interest are the replies to the question "Do you favor federal aid to education for any province that requests it?" With the opinions of Quebec representatives included, 77 per cent answered yes. Without Quebec the affirmative percentage was 83. But 76 per cent do not want such aid to be channelled through an authoritarian federal department of education. Against this figure is one of 92 per cent favorable to conditional grants and 79 per cent for administration through an advisory federal department of education.

It seems to be the consensus that any federal grant should be given on an equalization basis to help the poorer provinces, and that funds from Ottawa should supplement, not replace, provincial expenditures on education.

British Columbia's reaction to federal aid would doubtless be influenced by the fact that this is a rich province and could expect to pay in more than it received back if revenue were piped into Ottawa for Canada-wide distribution. But British Columbia would also understand that it could suffer from inadequate education elsewhere since populations move about in this country and people with inferior schooling are not kept out of the province. Moreover, British Columbians obviously have to look at the question as Canadians, beyond strictly parochial interests.

We are now receiving federal aid for higher education because the Federal Government rightly considers universities and the people they train to be national assets. Some help comes also to secondary schools for specialized courses. So far however, no general federal assistance is supplied to grade schools.

If Ottawa stepped into that field—and it probably would involve changes in the B.N.A. Act—a new set of conditions would arise. Their complexities are obvious; possible intrusion in curricular matters and almost inevitably revived controversy on separate schools.

Whom Are They Working For?

MR. ROBERT STRACHAN OF the CCF, who has been doing his homework on B.C.'s crucial power question, made an extremely interesting and valid criticism of the conduct of Government ministers in the Throne Speech debate.

Two of those ministers—Mr. Kiernan and Mr. Williston, are members of the B.C. Power Commission. As such, they are in the position of directors of the public utility (as the directors of any company) should be expected to advance the interests of the B.C. Hydro with all the vigor at their command.

But what have they been doing? Photographic slide boxes in hand, they have been ranging the province, giving illustrated lectures in support of the Peace—a project destined to benefit a handful of private promoters, and one in direct conflict with the low-cost Columbia development.

In other words, they have been boosting their own opposition, a practice which would not be tolerated for a minute in private industry.

Mr. Strachan's comments point up the ambiguity of the ministers' position. Their appointment to the power board was ill-conceived in the first place. Since they have clearly expressed their favoritism of the Peace in a dozen recorded instances, they should resign immediately from the B.C. Hydro and make way for people who are sincerely concerned with providing the province with cheap power.

Help for Unskilled Hands

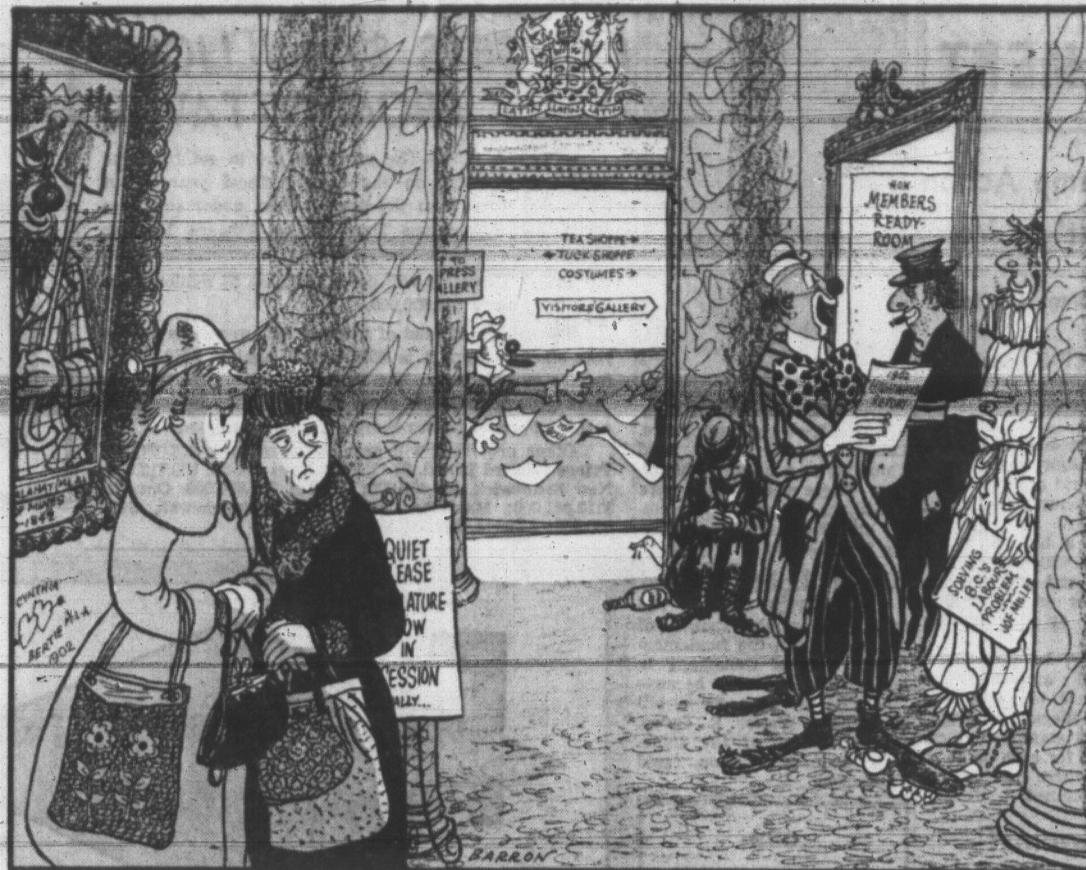

WHILE BRITISH COLUMBIA with other parts of this continent, is mired in a great debate on school costs, Manitoba's Premier Duff Roblin seems to have lifted the subject to a higher plane.

The Toronto Star compliments him for his do-it-yourself plan under which Manitoba would provide schools and staff for have-not Commonwealth countries. The schools, it is assumed, would teach the people of less developed lands how to cope with some of the technological problems inevitable when the machine moves into the hand-labor society.

Some practical knowledge provided in schools such as the Manitoba premier suggests could help to overcome waste and inefficiency due to technical illiteracy.

More power to Mr. Roblin. May his proposal meet the success its inspiration so justly deserves.

Barron, Victoria Daily Times.

LET'S PUT DOWN THE HAMMER

By B. A. TOBIN

A Cure for the Ailments We Create

THE news item said that "a new non-narcotic analgesic, soma, has been found almost as effective as codeine in controlling deep pain produced by ultrasonic waves."

That sounds like running hard to stay in the same place. We produce an artificial cause of pain, and then triumphantly discover something that will help us stand it. It isn't very far from the case of the man who liked to bang his head with a hammer because it felt so good when he stopped. How much of our modern life is getting into this category?

It has long been said by philosophers that man is his own worst enemy. Now man is gallantly hurrying to his own rescue. Does that win him a place in the hall of fame or merely in the nut house?

We pollute the air and then spend millions trying to unpollute it. We dirty the rivers with industrial waste and then spend other millions trying to clean them. We cut down natural trees and bushes and buy imported trees and bushes—which will grow so well as the native species—to replace them.

Women torture themselves with diet and exercise to regain the figures their eating habits destroyed. Men pay money to physical culture classes to regain the health they paid money to lose in night clubs or other pastimes.

But it doesn't stop there. We pay money to commissions to study and recommend cures for the actions of governments which we paid to act. We seem to be continually bailing ourselves out of jails we taxed ourselves to build. We pay out money to build fences around the holes we didn't need and couldn't afford.

Man is a great benefactor to himself, but he's up against a tough opponent—also himself.

Some day we may get to the enlightened point where we will pay our money to avoid the initial error, then we won't have to pay still more to correct it. In effect, we'll get our relief for half-price.

The penology people urge that, but we haven't really got around to it yet. We create costly social conditions which produce criminals, then create costly prisons, to punish them and, perhaps, cure them.

We pollute the air and then spend millions trying to unpollute it. We dirty the rivers with industrial waste and then spend other millions trying to clean them. We cut down natural trees and

New York slums, for instance, which manufacture juvenile delinquents at an impressive rate, are supposed to be low-priced living accommodation. But from the other standpoint they're the most expensive dwellings imaginable. Some day man may do something about that, too, beyond the tentative experiments that have been made so far.

Some day, in fact, we may get cracking and stop making all those ultrasonic waves that cause deep pain. Then we could stop working so hard to develop non-narcotic analgesics. If we didn't make them we wouldn't have to know what they are and how to spell them. Another source of pain would have been eradicated.

When that day comes, we might also stop praising the experts who figure out ways to pay off public debts. We would save the bouquets for the fellow who figures out ways to stay OUT of debt. But of course that's a long way off yet.

I guess for a while we'll just have to go along hitting our wallets with the financial hammer and sighing with pleasure when we get temporary relief by stopping. It's expensive—so it must be good.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Heads and Hats

Recently under "Marked for Reading" you used a quotation in respect to birth control which no doubt was well received by proponents of the scheme:

Undoubtedly you will want to balance your ledger by using a quote which reflects the other view.

One such might be that of Rev. Thomas Hesburgh, S.J., president of Notre Dame, who said: "I am reminded of the words of G. K. Chesterton: 'If we have more heads than hats we don't lop off heads—we make more hats.'

Swap for Parkland?

The Thetis Lake Park issue having reached the editorial page, it is pertinent to ask: How many of us are competent to judge this dispute concerning that the quality of decision should not be strained?

The BCE feels justified in craving a right of way to part of the public domain for utility purposes. Certain of our fellow-citizens object. Hence the impasse!

But is this the issue one of power vs. public? Are our real interests being threatened? Or are we merely being asked to share part of our heritage to the mutual and lasting advantage of all? This is something we should understand first and before we journey into jeopardy!

If these particular 26 or 76 acres are going to offend us, so to speak, in the discharge of our obligations to each other and the community as a whole, we should be willing to compromise, not against the public concern but in our attitudes towards settlement. Government of, by and for the people does not mean, of, by and for a section but in the interests of all.

It may be that the BCE has something in this angle should not be lost sight of in our attitudes of conservation. Perhaps a swap of comparable value for park purposes could be arranged, if need be?

Detrimental to Youth

Last week marked "Young Hockey Week" in Canada and we have a very serious situation facing us which needs to be rectified quickly.

I refer to an incident which received much publicity in this area recently. The case involved the unfair fine and suspension of player Jack Blonda of the Victoria Cougars.

As every fan is aware, the referee was hit from behind, knocking the referee to the ice and was going to strike the referee with his hockey stick whilst the referee was down on the ice. The three thousand fans who were at the game knew that this is far from the truth. They also knew the referee did not fall or strike the ice with even his knee.

How is our youth going to grow up false? Only good and honest refereeing and referees' reports will bring about the respect that is desired.

Also we have been subjected to some of the poorest officiating ever to be witnessed in any game anywhere. I submit the type and class of officiating reflects back to the top of the organization and when the top of the organization is unable to produce better referees he has no alternative but to resign.

I say let's clean up the officiating so that our youth will get a true picture of what is expected from a great athlete. If it means the resignation of all the top brass then let's have their resignations and let the fans have well-called games and have our youth not turn prejudiced in their minds concerning our sports.

The Milk Carton Fight

I am a shareholder in the Milky Way Dairy and would like to clear up a few points re the fight now raging over our 64 ounce carton.

This fight is not between us and the Cabinet. It is, and has been from the start, between a group of Saanich farmers and the large distributors. These concerns always stay in the background and get others to do their dirty work for them.

It is the issue one of power vs. public? Are our real interests being threatened? Or are we merely being asked to share part of our heritage to the mutual and lasting advantage of all? This is something we should understand first and before we journey into jeopardy!

The Thinking Kid's Filter

A FRIEND of mine with a flair for presenting ideas ad infinitum or ad absurdum — I'm not sure which — is intrigued by the plan to try educational television at S. J. Willis school.

The possibilities, he thinks, are limitless, and perhaps economical.

"Why?" he asks. "restrict the scheme to a few teachers for a few grades? Why not have, instead of a few specialists, a complete staff of specialists, say a dozen, covering the whole of the curriculum for the whole of the school district?

"They'd be the best in the business. Then the school board could release all the other teachers for more productive labors, the men as loggers, the women as psychiatric nurses or patients, as the case may be. Instead of spending $100 million on education we could do the job for $100,000."

But this is only the beginning. Once the principle of instruction by experts on TV has been established, look at the economies that could be effected... Get the mops with their eyes perpetually glued to the screen, and you wouldn't need to send them to school at all. They could be taught at home.

If the school board didn't have to supply classroom space and an army of teachers, it could afford to put a television set in every home — an extra one if the homes are already equipped, one specially for the kids. Politically, what better bait could be offered than that? Why the school board that did it would be elected for life and would have time to show Mr. Bennett what 'goodies' really are.

Put that point across and the city wouldn't have to worry about the $20,000 cost of the initial experiment. Nor about what the expenditure might be if the scheme proved a success and were universally adopted. Any alert political party with an appreciation for the sweetening effects of 'goodies' would be happy to collect a little more from the people to give them back such presents.

"Also," my friend points out, "we've been arguing the necessity of changing human nature for years and not doing enough about it. Here we have a chance to revolutionize society. Teaching to the child would be uniform. They'd all get the same. The burgeoning brains, if any, would be pressed into the same mold. You see? No independent spirits to throw rocks at good ideas.

And think of what it would do for the home. A mother wouldn't have to go through the labors of Hercules every morning to get the kids up. She'd let them sleep. Then when the lesson started, she could prop them up in bed, switch on their personal TV and tell them to watch.

Oh, sure, she might have to run in with fruit juice, cereal, toast and coffee, but the kids wouldn't be underfoot. And with an electric blanket — also provided by a government — out of savings on the educational account — they could be made comfy.

"Can't you see the scene of domestic bliss? The youngster worries down his toast, calls for an extra cup of coffee, all the time exposed to the education beamed at him from the television screen. He shifts to get more comfortable and hollers for a cigarette with a thinking kid's filter.

"Why, it might be possible to encourage him to stay in bed days at a time. And think what that would save in clothes, shoe leather, haircuts and those deodorizing soaps people who like people and who mingle with them have to buy.

"Oh! You want to know what they'd use the schools they already have built for? Simple. Too simple. Those big gyms are obviously the places for district mothers to go for their keep-slim classes.

"And the other rooms and equipment? That's simple, too. They'd be used for adult education. I can see the crowds filling them, night after night. Don't forget, it would be necessary to provide some education if you left education to television. The older folk would have to learn.

"And a good thing, too. We're wasting too much on what we're giving to the kids that the kids don't want.

"You think the kids would grow up ignorant? So what? Haven't you been listening to the critics talk about the way schools are turning out youngsters today?"

THE THINGS WE SEE

By ALAN JARVIS

Truth About New Gallery

I am not surprised to find that a great many people are baffled to find the new National Gallery building referred to as a "temporary" building when the Lorne building is so obviously as permanent as a building can be. What is permanent and what is temporary about the new set-up? I used to have highly entertaining discussions with Mr. Massey — who is honorary president of the National Gallery of Canada — as to whether the gallery's new home should be described as a temporary permanent building or a permanent temporary building.

Well, the truth of the matter is very simple. The Lorne building is a permanent office building which, when the National Gallery vacates it will house the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. It was commissioned by the Department of Public Works for the federal government and named after a former governor-general, the Marquis of Lorne who founded, in 1880, the National Gallery of Canada and the Royal Canadian Academy.

It will be used, for some indefinite period, to house the National Gallery of Canada and the Design Centre. Or, in other words, the gallery is again in temporary quarters. The ultimate site for the National Gallery, under the National Capital Commission plans is Cartier Square, now occupied by National Defence Headquarters, and it is intended that the gallery will have there its own specially designed building. A national competition for the design of this future National Gallery was held in 1954 and was won by the firm of architects, Green, Blankstein and Russell of Winnipeg. As a result of their winning this competition, this firm was given the contract to design the Lorne building, but the design of this building bears no relation to the prize-winning design for Cartier Square.

There are few things as permanent in Ottawa — and no doubt elsewhere — as temporary accommodation, and it was a trying decision for the trustees of the gallery to have to make, early in 1955, when it was agreed that the Lorne should be the next but not final home of the National Gallery. After all, the gallery had had to accept the dismal quarters of the old Victoria Museum as a temporary measure since 1911!

However, when the then minister of citizenship and immigration (the Hon. J. W. Pickersgill) offered to postpone his occupancy of the building and let the gallery use it for some temporary period, the trustees had one very cogent reason for accepting — the safety of the collection. This, of course, has been a principal concern of the gallery's trustees ever since its inception, but their concern reached something of a fever-pitch by 1955-56 with the acquisition of 12 great masterpieces of painting from the collection of the Prince of Liechtenstein, works by such artists as Simone Martini, Rembrandt, Chardin and Rubens, for which more than a million-and-a-half dollars was paid. And, also, the values of paintings already in the collection had been mounting to literally astronomical heights since 1946.

I will not venture to guess at the total value of the collection, but I will quote two examples of rises in value which have recently become public knowledge. A painting by Piero di Cosimo (1462-1521) called The Forge of Vulcan, was bought by the gallery 20 years ago for $25,000. In the summer of 1959 the dealer from whom it was bought, Hans Schaefer of New York, offered $250,000 for it and said he was confident of getting it again at a profit. The gallery owns five paintings by Paul Cezanne which it acquired at prices which seemed reasonable at the time but which now seem bargain basement when it is considered that Cezanne's Boy in a Red Vest was sold at Sotheby's of London, in October, 1958, for $616,000, at that time, the highest price ever paid for a picture at auction.

The safety of the collection — and it is a collection of which every Canadian can and should be proud — alone would have decided any group of responsible trustees to accept a move to a fire-proof, earthquake-proof and air-conditioned building, especially a building nearly five times the size of the previous cramped quarters. Mr. Pickersgill's kind offer was accepted when it was also agreed that the Department of Public Works and the architects should, working with the gallery staff, use every form of architectural and planning ingenuity to make the Lorne building as suitable as possible for use as a gallery, without impairing its ultimate efficiency as an office building and without incurring unnecessary expense.

There are few things as permanent in Ottawa — and no doubt elsewhere — as temporary accommodation, and it was a trying decision for the trustees of the gallery to have to make, early in 1955, when it was agreed that the Lorne should be the next but not final home of the National Gallery. After all, the gallery had had to accept the

COLUMBIA R. POWER THREAT TO TRADE?

The proposed Columbia River development could injure Canadian export markets in the U.S. unless a favorable tariff agreement is obtained, Trade Minister Robert Bonner said Thursday.

Speaking in the legislature, he said the federal government should press for tariff adjustments to ensure the U.S. will not use the new additional power to replace goods now imported from this country. He pointed to aluminum as an example. "I hope that proper co-operation with the U.S. on Columbia does not bind our federal government to unsolved trade problems," he said.

Energy Output Key to Future

Ultimate Power Development Needed Immediately, Bonner Tells House

The production of energy — mainly electrical energy, during the next decade in large amounts, is the indisputable key to the economic future of British Columbia, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday.

Speaking in the legislature, in his dual role as trade minister, Mr. Bonner said the major criticism of the development of the Peace River was based on political theory — the theory the development should be by public authority.

But the future growth of the province calls for ultimate power development as soon as possible — and this consideration should outweigh everything else.

With respect to the public development theory, he said, "against this view and opposed to it, is the opinion of this government, and I think of the majority of the people of this province, who believe that in a territory the size of the whole of western Europe and the United Kingdom put together there is room for both types of development."

He indicated a new point of view is required, that B.C. should be concerned with the end rather than the means.

He reviewed the growth of B.C. during the last decade. In the 50s he said, the people spent $442,000,000 on transportation and communication, $580,000,000 on health and welfare, $281,000,000 on education a year.

We Must Prepare for Future'

He said the U.S. growth rate means an additional 30,000,000 people by 1970 to use Canadian exports. "If we are going to claim the future which beckons, we must prepare for it."

He added, "I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that British Columbia is going to take off in the 60s." All societies pass through evolutionary stages leading to an age of high mass consumption.

"The extent of our take-off lies in our ability to attract capital and in increasing measures to produce it ourselves.

"Before we can make a great leap forward" B.C. must establish substantial manufacturing sectors and must mobilize capital, he said, promote immigration and speed the use of modern techniques.

"Energy, more than anything else, will prove to be the major factor in the attraction and subsequent establishment of heavy industry in this province. On-the-spot supply of raw materials is no longer a prime requisite in the location of industry serving either

EDGELOW
DENIES LAND
INTEREST

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, said Thursday that if he was thinking of himself he would "keep Thetis Lake as wild as all get-out."

He denied that he held any interest in property that might be affected by the B.C. Electric power line easement through the park that he has advocated.

Speculation of an ulterior motive arose because he lives a short distance from the park property.

But Ald. Edgelow emphasized that he favored the power line easement because the money would help develop the park without costing taxpayers anything.

Stock Yields Average High

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

In every cloud there is a silver lining, goes the song, and the firm of Moss Lawson & Co. would have you believe it.

One happy aspect of the current depressed market for those with fresh money to invest is that stock yields now average the highest in 18 months, says Malone.

This week's average return on 64 common stocks, calculated by Moss Lawson is 4.23 per cent, highest since July 21, 1958.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Sid Smith, CLU, a representative of Great West Life Assurance here, has been selected to represent Victoria Life Underwriters' Association at the 53rd annual meeting of the Life Underwriters of Canada at Montreal, Feb. 10-12. Two Victoria men were among three Shell Oil employees honored on retirement last week in Vancouver. C. R. "Charlie" Caselton, born and educated in Victoria, joined Shell in 1923 as a truck driver in Victoria. R. D. "Bob" Cameron, a native Victorian, joined Shell in 1939 as an automotive mechanic.

The stock market was all agog this week about two stocks which have been going in opposite directions.

Timeliest ticket topic was Canadian Colliers. CC Thursday churned a thumping 67,648 shares for three-eighths of a point gain to $104. This means nearly three-quarters of a million dollars was involved when big league trading even in this age of the inflated dollar. Brokers say most of the trading originated in Vancouver where the head office is located. Unconfirmed rumors swirled (see TIMES, Jan. 30) that CC, basically a coal mining and timber firm, would go into real estate. There also was talk of a takeover offer and that CC would develop iron-ore properties.

Richard Whittall, son of the president of CC, Norman Whittall, emphatically denied the rumors in a telephone conversation:

He hinted at an announcement in the "near future," said he was endeavoring to bring the directors together for an important meeting.

A few hours later Mr. Norman Whittall said what insiders predicted he would: negotiations are going on for the sale of Canadian Colliers. He didn't identify the company which many believe is the vast Weyerhaeuser timber firm of Washington.

Mr. Whittall did say that no concrete offer is available to date and one is not likely to become firm before Feb. 29.

Getting a lot of conversational play, along with Canadian Colliers, is Cockshutt Farm Equipment.

Cockshutt plunged 2% to a 1960 low of 19% in the wake of developments at the annual meeting this week in Toronto.

Brokers noted Cockshutt rose sharply recently (from $16 to $25) on rumors investors apparently felt were not borne out at the meeting.

Heavy selling, say brokers, may indicate investors' disappointment over the resignation of the board chairman and three directors.

ACCURATE

Reeve George Chatterton, who once served as chairman of School Board 63, said school boards can forecast school population enrollment accurately, but not population trends in particular areas.

"They haven't got the means for projecting population trends," he said. "We have because we know where the subdivisions are being developed."

He said early capital expenditure out of revenue for the purchase of future school sites are needed so that choice locations can be acquired at reasonable cost.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BLAMED FOR WIDENING RIFT

Anti-Labor 'Pressure' Charged

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is exerting pressure on the Canadian government, designed to weaken the labor movement, A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council charged here Thursday.

In an address to Victoria Rotary Club, he said there was a "serious" tendency at present to widen differences between labor and management.

So troubled was the present labor-management scene, he continued, that it can lead back to "conflicts" of years past.

This meant that there exists a "real need" for increasingly constructive talks between labor and management, he stated.

He said there are efforts by "certain management" groups to have legislation relating to labor and management revised, and that even now the "great volume" of such laws is liable to "hinder rather than help" liaison between the two groups.

SLICK PHRASES

"Too many slick phrases are being used," in labor legislation, he charged.

Therefore it is not surprising, he went on, that the workers "feel against" the laws which may be used to take away what they consider their rights.

Mr. Toone added that "in some instances, these suspicions may be well founded."

He said Bill 43, passed by the B.C. government last year, "restricts and takes away" civil liberties and rights of workers, and is designed to squash "the rights of workers wherever possible."

There has been wide acceptance of Bill 43 amongst employers, he pointed out.

"We note with alarm," Mr. Toone said, that the B.C. government was "the first in the free world" to "prohibit peaceful picketing."

On other subjects, the speaker said while labor was not opposed to increased industrial efficiency, "advanced warning" of changes regarding automation would be appreciated.

He said "we all" prefer trade competition rather than competition with Russia. And the relationship between labor and management has a definite bearing on production, as no country can have sufficient production when the two spheres are in conflict.

DIRECT OFFENSIVE

He said labor generally will "resist any right-to-work legislation with all its might, as this would constitute a direct offensive against labor."

He indicated the possibility of such legislation did not seem remote.

When dictatorships grow—either individual dictatorships or these by other means—the first objects to be attacked are the trade unions, he said.

He said the next to go "is the free enterprise system, by a close second."

Labor, he pointed out, was asking for more than "a few cents an hour." It was asking for its proper place in administration of any help for the worker.

But labor's suggestion to the federal government to call for a management-labor conference to iron out difficulties had met with no response, either from government or from employers, he said.

Division IV 1:30 p.m.—McNutt vs Salt Spring Island, Salmon Park.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—A comparatively unknown professional paced the name players today as the $100,000 Palm Springs desert golf classic went into its third round.

One stroke in front approaching the halfway point in the 90-hole event over four courses was Wes Ellis Jr., who Thursday put together his tournament's lowest round of 63 over the tough Fairways course.

He had a first-round 70 for a 135 total. Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, and 24-year-old John McMullin of Fair Oaks, Calif., had 136. Johnston shot a 67 at Thunderbird to go with his previous 69. McMullin scored 68 two days in a row.

As the pressure grew, some of the top money-whiners were close enough to move in for the kill. Veterans Al Belsink, Jackie Burke Jr. and Johnny Palmer were only two 77 for a 151.

One of the big features of the tournament, the richest in the world, is the $50,000 prize for a hole-in-one. Souchak started the gallery by almost getting one Thursday.

It happened on the 148-yard eighth hole at Thunderbird when his tee shot dropped into the cup and bounced out, winding up six inches away. Had the flag been leaning in the opposite direction, the ball probably would have stayed in the hole.

LEONARD TOP CANADIAN

The Canadian contingent was led by Stan Leonard of Vancouver. He shot a par 72 at the Palm Springs course for a 141 total. One stroke behind was Al Balding of Toronto. He had a 69 Thursday and 73 Wednesday. Moe Norman of Toronto had a 70 for a 145 total and Jerry Magee of Toronto skyrocketed to a 77 for a 151.

TORONTO HOCKEY FANS FIRST ON PAY-TV LIST

TORONTO—National Hockey League road games of Toronto Maple Leafs will kick off pay-TV programming in Canada.

John J. Fitzgibbons, president of the Famous Players Theatres Company, which is running the telemeter pay-TV installation in West Toronto, said the first broadcast will originate via cable from New York Feb. 28.

Road games will also be telecast Sunday nights from New York, Boston and Detroit.

Fitzgibbons did not say what subscribers would be charged. The NHL games are only the first of a series of attractions planned.

Vikings Closing In On Island Crown

The Vancouver Island junior basketball crown is as good as in Victoria University's trophy room.

moved within a game of the title Thursday night by downing Navy 61-40 at Mount View High School. It was the opening game of a best-of-three final.

Despite a magnificent effort by Navy's Martin Tomczek, who led both teams with 19 points, the powerful, perennial champs were ahead 27-21 at the half and won going away.

HALFWAYS WIN

MONTREAL—National Hockey League headquarters announced Wednesday that attendance this season is up more than six per cent over last season with only Montreal Canadiens showing a decline.

It is, however, not because Montreal fans are showing less interest in the Stanley Cup champions who are so obviously the class of the league. Every seat in Montreal Forum, as it has been for a decade or more, has been sold for every game. The drop of about 3,000 has been caused because there have been an average of about 100 fewer standees for each game.

Canadiens have played in the Forum 25 times this season and their total attendance of 349,000 averages out to almost 14,000 a game.

Detroit Red Wings, moving up from last season's dismal showing to hang around in the runner-up spot most of the season, show the biggest gain—up 29,000 for the same number of games from last season. And Chicago Black Hawks, also a more interesting club than they were a season ago, have added 28,000 fans.

Boston Bruins show an increase of 19,000, Toronto Maple Leafs have a gate boost of 15,000 and even the lowly New York Rangers are drawing better—8,000 fans better.

Toronto has an aggregate attendance of 331,000, Boston 278,000, Detroit 247,000, New York 233,000 and Chicago 205,000.

Pancho's Pride Would Rush Him Back Into Action

NEW YORK (AP)—Pancho Gonzales says this is his last year of professional tennis, but one thing could lure him back to the courts—an open tournament.

Second game of the junior men's series will be played on Wednesday, Jan. 25, at 2 p.m. at the Forum.

"If, as they say, we have an open championship in 1961, I'd break my legs trying to get in shape to win it," he said.

"It's a matter of pride. I would like to finish off my career by winning the first big open."

Open tennis by 1961 became a virtual certainty Wednesday when the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia, meeting in Melbourne, voted 4 to 3 to back unrestricted play at the international federation meeting next July.

Banking Inquiry Urged by Bonner

Royal Commission Should Probe Money Policies, Credit Facilities

Establishment of a royal commission to "reappraise" Canadian banking and credit facilities was suggested by B.C. Trade Minister Robert Bonner Thursday.

Speaking in the throne speech debate in the legislature, he said, "It is apparent that the normal credit facilities available to Canadian business are not sufficient to cope with a high level of economic activity."

Mr. Bonner said the "one blight" on the future of B.C. today is the problem of "tight money" and he added that high interest rates and tight money usually go together.

"Canada's growing industrial and commercial needs are not being met by the banking system we have today, and B.C. in particular has been hampered by lack of credit."

"This province was hit more heavily than almost any other part of Canada during the recession. And, although our recovery has been very good, it has not had the snap it would have had if our credit facilities were geared to more flexible monetary conditions."

BUDGET BLAMED

Mr. Bonner said the inability of the federal government to balance the budget has partially led to the increase in outstanding treasury bills from $1,495 billion to $2,077 billion during 1959, for an increase of 39 per cent.

The short-term money market

PROPERTY TAX NEARLY DOUBLE IN SIX YEARS

Municipal property tax revenues in British Columbia have increased almost 50 per cent since 1954 from $53,784,569 to an estimated $106,000,000 in 1959.

The figures were contained in the annual report of the Municipal Affairs Department, filed in the Legislature, Thursday, by Municipal Affairs Minister W. E. Black.

Assessed values actually taxed were $2,248,145,499 for school purposes and $1,721,746,974 for municipal purposes.

"The municipal tax base continues to grow with the expansion in 1958-59 being about 10 per cent," the report said.

ELECTRICAL PROGRESS STALLED

She Can't See the Light

The B.C. government is bypassing the "hinterland" of the province with eyes only on the North, Mrs. Lois Hagen, the CCF member for Grand Forks-Greenwood, told the legislature Thursday.

"Half a century after electricity has become an accepted commodity available to most parts of this province, I have to plead for electrical services for many of us people," Mrs. Hagen said.

"This is not good enough considering what these people have contributed to the economy and well-being of this province."

HOSPITAL AID

Mrs. Hagen said there would be no effective chronic care program in B.C. until the government took full responsibility for it.

She declared the government had shifted responsibility for the building of chronic care hospitals to the public, the municipalities and charitable organization, who were asked to take the initiative and provide half of the cost.

"Any adequate chronic care coverage must include chronic care institutions," she said.

She was "frankly skeptical" of government promises to take electricity to all parts of British Columbia.

"I fear my people will never enjoy the benefits of hydroelectric power. I think they will have to wait for atomic or nuclear power, and that is one or two generations ahead."

Mrs. Hagen said there would be no effective chronic care program in B.C. until the government took full responsibility for it.

She declared the government had shifted responsibility for the building of chronic care hospitals to the public, the municipalities and charitable organization, who were asked to take the initiative and provide half of the cost.

"Any adequate chronic care coverage must include chronic care institutions," she said.

School Board Raps Province

Cowichan Brief Protests Lack of Building Funds

(From Duncan Bureau)

A report from the finance committee of Cowichan District 65 School Board, which charges the provincial government has failed to meet its responsibility to provide funds for school construction, was sent to Premier Bennett and Education Minister Peterson today.

The brief, prepared by trustees Wilf Peck and J. S. C. Fraser, was approved by the board Thursday. A discussion centred on the school crowding in the district which, board members emphasized, will be even more acute next term.

The brief states in part: "The stringent requirements of the department of education, its rather low standard for urgently required accommodation, the avoidable delay we suffered due to the department's error in the handling of referendum No. 3, and the government's failure to meet its responsibility to provide funds for construction, have resulted in this district being put in the position of having inadequate accommodation in spite of the ratepayers being willing to pay for it, and of the board's efforts to provide it."

"It is worth noting the government has been able to market bonds for other purposes, and that other provinces have been able to market school construction bonds through the same period," the brief states.

CONFIRMATION

A letter of confirmation was received by the board Thursday that $477,000 is available from the Bank of Montreal, the minimum amount requested by the board. The bank will loan the district $250,000 by June and $227,000 by the end of the year, school secretary G. F. Dyson reported.

The school board has called for tenders for an addition to Tansor Elementary School. The loan will include construction of one of two planned junior high schools.

They appeared before Magistrate L. Beevor-Potts.

FOR GEORGE I—40 YEARS LATER

'A Night to Remember'

Retiring publicity commissioner George L. Warren will be honored at a "George Warren Testimonial Dinner" in Empress Hotel Thursday, March 31, it was announced following a meeting of the Tourist and Publicity Bureau Thursday.

Times publisher, Stuart Keate, has been named chairman of the dinner, with W. J. Clarke as vice-chairman. They have been given power to add to their committee.

"We want to make this a night George will remember and a tribute to his 40 years of service," Mr. Keate said.

D. Leo Dolan, Canadian consul-general in Los Angeles, and an old friend of George's, has accepted an invitation to be main speaker of the evening.

"Frankly, we intend to blow the lid right off the Empress Hotel with an appropriate salute to Mr. Victoria."

The dinner will be a black-tie affair, at $7.50 a plate. Reservations may be made through Chamber of Commerce offices or Mrs. J. Edwards, editorial secretary of the Times. Accommodation will be limited to 300.

RADAR SIGNAL BOUNCED OFF SUN

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — U.S. scientists have made an "epochal" achievement" by bouncing a radar signal off the sun, it was announced today.

The feat marked the first direct radial contact with the sun in history and it is hoped the experiments will allow prediction of radio communication trouble caused by the sun.

The experiment was carried out by Stanford scientists Prof. Von R. Caldeira, Lt. Col. Robert C. Barthol and Dr. Philip B. Gallagher at sunrise on April 7, 10, and 12, 1959.

Paper Chains Hit by CCF Chief

TORONTO (CP) — Control which the continued life of a large section of Canadian newspapers by four huge corporations "is one of the most ominous developments of our time," Hazen Argue, CCF leader in the Commons, said Thursday.

The public mind today is being mastered through control of the advertising media, television, radio and newspapers," he told a luncheon meeting here of the Empire Club of Canada.

"The Madison Avenue crowd, psychologists and psychiatrists so play on the normal human emotions as to manage our buying tastes, invade our personal lives, even determine the political party that dominates the nation. They have robbed us of a free independent judgment on newspaper chains."

Mr. Argue did not identify the newspaper chains.

MANY AND VARIED SITES OFFERED FOR QUEEN'S BUST

Oh Where, Oh Where Should It Go?

By JOHN MIKA

Shades of the 64 centennial balloons!

Victorians and non-Victorians are overflowing with suggestions on what to do with the concrete bust of Queen Elizabeth.

The seven-foot-tall 800-pound statue is resting temporarily in the City Hall lobby while parks committee wrestles with the problem of where it should be located permanently.

And just as it did with the balloon problem — remember that one? — the public is volunteering dozens of solutions.

Latest suggestion was made by Alex Baird, connected with the Highland Games Association, who says it should be put in one of the Government House gardens.

IVY CLAD

If located near the driveway, with ivy creeping up the long shaft bearing the Queen's likeness, it would be a treasured addition to the landscape, he feels.

Other suggested locations: the Causeway, Empress Hotel lawn, Parliament Buildings lawn, Butchart Gardens, the new Law Courts building.

Two persons have offered to buy the bust for use as tourist attractions: Sam Lane, proprietor of the Olde England Inn and Giuseppe Roat who runs a private museum at Qualicum Beach and has described the statue as a "Royal Orphan."

Saanich council, which is sharing the cost anyway, has offered to take the bust and find it a permanent home.

CUT OFF

But several City Hall officials would like to see the long concrete column supporting the bust cut off and the Queen's likeness only given to the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

Others have suggested the City Hall lobby as a permanent location for the work but Ald. M. H. Mooney insists that it should be raised in Beacon Hill park opposite the Burns statue.

In any event, the location problem has grown from a moloch into a mountain that has stumped city parks committee, city council and even intermunicipal committee so far.

Incidentally, the centennial balloon problem isn't solved yet either.

A trustee committee handling cleanup of the centennial projects will meet soon to have another go at trying to dispose of the seven-foot-diameter balloons — possibly as an attraction for the coming world's fair in Seattle.

21 FOR 8

TOMORROW

A 21-gun salute marking accession to the throne eight years ago of Queen Elizabeth will be fired at noon Saturday from the Causeway by the 5th B.C. Independent Medium Battery, RCA.

The firing party of four gun crews will be commanded by Lieut. Derek Elocote.

City Considerers Billboard Ban

Bylaw Revision Aimed At Large-Sized Signs

Large billboards dotting Victoria streets will vanish within three years if a proposed revision of the city sign bylaw is adopted.

Public works committee today received the draft revision for study and decided to hold a special meeting in two weeks when interested business will be heard.

Major change proposed in the existing regulations, which date back to 1938, is elimination of the huge billboards.

The draft bylaw would ban all billboards except those under 16 square feet in size. A limit of two on any single parcel of land also would be enforced.

That's a sharp reduction from the existing billboard sizes running between 200 and 300 square feet.

The draft bylaw would put a three-year deadline on putting down the big billboards.

Other features of the existing sign provisions would be changed to streamline administration and tighten civic control over the sign problem.

But projecting signs over city streets still would be allowed.

Witness Ruled Hostile In Murder Trial

A Crown witness, called to give evidence in Nanaimo Assize Court concerning an alleged confession recounted to him in jail by a man charged with murder, was declared an hostile witness.

He is Edward Michael McCabe, appearing at the trial of Leland Eugene Miller, 33, charged in connection with the stabbing death April 2, 1957, of his common-law wife, Mrs. Dorothy Duyvejonck.

The ruling was made by Mr. Justice Norman Whitaker after McCabe consistently denied statements he allegedly made at the preliminary hearing of the case in May, 1957.

Under cross-examination McCabe, who was in Oakalla Prison with Miller prior to the hearing, admitted quoting Miller as saying: "I murdered my wife."

During an absence of the jury James J. Proudfoot, defense counsel, told the court McCabe was told he would receive favors concerning his own trial if he got certain confessions from Miller. Mr. Proudfoot said he was prepared to prove this.

SCREAMS UPSET DOGS

Witness John Hurchuck, who lived 200 yards from the murder scene, said that on the night in question he thought he heard a woman screaming at about 9 o'clock. The screams upset the German shepherd dog, he said.

"They all started barking at the sound," he said. "I thought it was a woman's scream, but later figured it may have been a couple of cats."

Mrs. Norma Godfrey, of Black Creek, 12 miles north of Courtenay, a sister of the accused, said Miller had come to see her on the evening of Mrs. Duyvejonck's death.

"He seemed very nervous and said he had fought with his wife," she said. "His conversation was odd. He asked me if I thought it possible to read someone else's mind."

Maximum wind speed was 62 miles per hour in gusts at 11:20 p.m. Average at that time was 44 miles per hour, but it decreased gradually until early this morning, then shifted from the east to the southwest.

Another weather disturbance is on its way to this area, according to weatherman William Mackie, and will give thickening cloud overnight and rain for most of Saturday.

Winds will be southeasterly Saturday morning, then will swing to the southwest at 30 miles per hour late in the day. Temperatures will continue mild; with a minimum of 40 degrees tonight and a maximum of 49 degrees Saturday.

Premier Bennett, who will make the ultimate announcement, has so far maintained the election in B.C. could be either this year or next.

Mr. Price, Socred member for Vancouver-South, noted there has so far been little new legislation introduced in the House and said he didn't think there would be very much "in an election year."

He said he expects session may end the week of March 14 to 19 which would make it a seven-week session — not long, not short.

This week and next there will be a rush to complete members' speeches in the throne speech debate.

"We might have to hold a sitting Monday and also on Wednesday," he said, in order to clear the way for presentation of the budget next Friday.

Speakers on Monday afternoon are slated to be Minister Kenneth Kiernan, followed by Cedrick Cox (CCF-Burnaby), J. A. Reid (SC-Salmon Arm) and J. M. Bryan (Lib.-North Vancouver).

All canvassers will be instructed on the procedure of handing donations and all will be issued identification cards.

Temporary receipts for contributions will be handed down by the canvassers and permanent receipts for income tax deduction purposes will be mailed out later.

Canvassers will work in pairs and be escorted to and from their destinations by car for safety reasons.

BOATHOUSE WHICH BROKE LOOSE in high wind overnight would have wound up in Portage Inlet except for barrier of Craigflower Bridge. Residents viewed addition to landscape with interest, noted that craft stowed under cover and moored alongside (Times Photo by Halkett.)

seemed undamaged. Owner-operator Robert Southwell stayed aboard drifting float, was able to save it and boats from harm. Harrowing but uneventful voyage covered more than one mile. (Times Photo by Halkett.)

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Reeve George Murdoch and Oak Bay's council will be guests of Oak Bay Kiwanians Thursday at the weekly dinner in Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Speaker will be Mr. Murdoch. His subject will deal with the problem of juvenile delinquency and need for a family and juvenile court.

Seven new members will be inducted at the meeting, all Oak Bay residents.

Robert Arnold Burton, 18, Work Point, was fined $20 in city police court, Thursday when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of gin.

Driver of a car in collision with a paper carrier early Sunday was fined $250 for impaired driving when he appeared in Saanich police court Thursday.

Emil Charity, 882 Canterbury, pleaded guilty to the charge Monday and was remanded for probation report.

Magistrate William Ostler suspended Charity's licence for one month.

Oak Bay police today were continuing investigations into a $250 theft from a Lansdowne Road home early Wednesday night.

The home of Leonard Duncan, 2046 Lansdowne, was entered through a rear window.

B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Victoria Public Library music room to hear a discussion of provincial welfare services by J. A. Sadler, B.C. welfare director, and David Woodsworth, director of the Victoria Family and Children's Service.

The Dickens Fellowship will hold its annual banquet Saturday at 6:45 p.m. at 512 Fort.

R. B. Brooks will speak on the "Humor of Dickens." Pamela Paver will give vocal selections, and there also will be a sketch presented by several fellowship members.

Use Color Coffee Sugar Bring Sparkle to Table—
By PENNY SAVER

Next time you have friends dropping in for coffee why not surprise them with colored coffee sugar? Multi-colored mixture is now on the market and selling for 43 cents a pound. Have fun and try it!

For variety at your next party introduce some bacon rind delicacies for your guests to nibble on. These are delicious. Flavored with Cheddar cheese, they're pre-cooked and come in sealed bottles. Each bottle contains two and three-quarter ounces and sells for 95 cents.

Believe it or not, you'll be able to get a roast of beef this weekend for only 75 cents a pound. Store I was in today has boned and rolled prime ribs at that unusually low price.

Another good buy is the shoulder of beef that is priced at 65 cents a pound. Roasts are boneless and would make a tasty pot roast.

Brisket, too, will provide an economical meal at the price it's selling at now, just 30 cents a pound. This would make an excellent barbecue shortrib dish and would save many pennies if you're thinking of including a soup or stew on the family menu.

Butcher tells me that many of his customers buy the point end and cook it slowly as a roast.

If meat loaf is your choice, minced beef is budget-priced at 60 cents a pound while hamburger is selling at 45 cents a pound.

Local boiling fowls, fresh in this weekend, are another good buy at 35 cents a pound.

Price tag on bananas today really set me back on my heels! I've been paying 45 cents for two pounds but ones I saw were offered at 18 cents a pound. Quite a saving!

New crop of carrots are now in stock. These tender vegetables sell at 33 cents for two bunches.

Use some new potatoes around the family roast and give the whole meal a lift. These are priced at 35 cents for two pounds. Large, snowy-white cauliflower sell for 45 cents, new cabbage is priced at 15 cents a pound and Brussels sprouts cost 45 cents for two pounds.

For information on any of these items give Penny a ring at EV 2-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Teen-Ager Wonders About Measurements and Weight

Q. "I would like several bits of information, please. I am 15 years old with a small 5-ft. 1-in. frame. My measurements are bust 35 inches, waist 22 and hips 36. My weight varies from 101 to 104 pounds. How are my measurements and weight? My hips are full in the back and this creates a tight skirt problem. My knees have fatty deposits on the insides of them. Is there an exercise to correct this?"

A. I would say that you are a few pounds underweight except that you say you have a small frame. If that is the case you are just about right. Your measurements are just about right, too, except that you have a very small waist—almost too small for the rest of you. This is probably a question of build. If you, or any of my other readers, would like to have exercises for reducing the back hipline, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 3. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

For fat inner knees knead the fatty deposits between your thumbs and fingers and the heels of your hands. Also try the following: Lie on the floor on your back. Bend both knees and place your feet on the floor. Separate your knees. Breathe, snap the knees together. Continue, separating and snapping together.

Q. "I am a teen-ager and the following things make me self-conscious. Please answer in the paper soon. How can I get rid of whiteheads and blackheads? How can I get rid of freckles? Please do not say that they will go away eventually."

A. If your freckles are very thick or dark they will not entirely disappear, although they will be brighter in summer than in winter. So far as I know there are no creams which will banish them although some of the freckle creams may dim them slightly. The best measures are preventative. Do not indulge in outdoor life when the sun is hottest. Use one of the lotions or creams which screen out some of the rays and wear a big hat for protection.

Both whiteheads and blackheads require stimulation. Soap and water treatment (using a complexion brush) several times a day will help. Rinse well and apply an astringent. Blackheads usually accompany an oily skin.

Q. "This is an important question to me so I wish you would answer it for me. I am 14½ years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall and weigh 135 pounds. My bust measures 36 inches, waist 26 inches and hips 34. Am I too fat?"

A. You are a little on the plump side unless you have a very large frame; if so, you're probably about five to seven pounds overweight.

HAVE YOU A PROBLEM?

Housewives! This Is for You!
Share Troubles, Knowledge

Purpose of this column is to share practical knowledge. It is a clearing house for you to present your own problems and answer those of others.

So, you household experts, let's hear from you!

Write your problems clearly and send them in with your name and address to the "Have You a Problem" column, care of the women's department of this newspaper. In printing them names and addresses will be used unless the use of initials is specifically requested.

If you have answers to questions already printed you may write them in or telephone your suggestions to the women's department of this newspaper—EV 2-3131—between 1 and 2 o'clock any afternoon. We will print your solutions as they come in.

More Household Problems

Those creamy tea stains are still a problem for subscriber who wishes to know how to remove them from her fine wool blankets. Anyone a solution?

Directions for the Leaf pattern is wanted by Mrs. M. C. who wishes to locate it for knitting.

Mrs. S. A. would like to know how to prevent bathing suits from deteriorating after being in contact with chlorine in indoor swimming pools.

A subscriber wants to know how to remove black shoe polish marks from linoleum and hardwood floors.

Answers to Questions

Mrs. H. A. T. has another cure for warts on the hands for subscriber with this problem. She suggests dabbing castor oil on warts before bedtime. Another reader says that rubbing of liquid from milkweed once a day will take warts away.

DEAR ABBY...

Ask Him!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Does a wife have the right to know what time her husband gets off from work or does she come with the furniture? Does a man have the right to cash his pay check before his wife sees it?

My husband comes home at all hours and claims he has been working overtime. But he doesn't bring home the extra money to prove it. He is either lying about working overtime or else he is spending the money on monkey business. How does a wife find out these things?

IN THE DARK.

DEAR IN: A wife has the right to know how many hours her husband works and how much he is paid. Ask him. If he refuses to tell you, warn him that you will go to his place of work and find out from his boss. Then it will be apparent that he can't be trusted, and he'll be lucky to be working ANY TIME, let alone OVERTIME. Unless I miss my guess, your husband will probably tell you himself.

MRS. D.

DEAR MRS. D.: They are both adults, so cut the comedy AND the cord. Mother, Any effort on your part to break up this romance will be obvious.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DIANNE:

When in Rome—watch out!

DEAR ABBY: I think waiters and waitresses should smile and give just as good service to non-tippers as they do to tippers. And I'll tell you why: Not everybody believes in tipping here on earth. Some people prefer to tip in their wills. So my advice is this: Keep on giving good service in a Christ-like spirit and maybe they will remember you in their wills." I know of two such cases right here in this town. J.G.H.

DEAR J. G. H.: What you say may be true—but that's a long time to wait for a tip.

DEAR ABBY: Last June we went to Toronto to see our son, 22, graduate. Like a bolt from the blue he introduced us to "the girl I intend to marry"

Dinners at Government House

Two dinners highlight the Government House social program in the coming week. His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will give one dinner on Monday evening for deputy ministers of British Columbia and a second dinner on Tuesday evening for members of the Legislative Press Gallery. Lt.-Cmdr. J. H. Wade will act as aide-de-camp at the first dinner and Brig. Adam Ogle at the second.

Next Friday evening, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross will attend a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Mitchell in the Georgian Club in Vancouver. Miss Ruth MacLean will accompany Mrs. Ross.

On Saturday morning, Feb. 13, Mrs. Ross will attend a coffee party given by Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett and wives of members of the Executive Council, in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Earlier that morning, Mrs. Ross will open the IODE Diamond Jubilee Jamboree at Club Sirocco. Miss Ruth MacLean will be in attendance on both occasions.

Trip to Australia

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kjekstad of Sprout Lake will be embarking in SS Mariposa on Feb. 15 for a cruise to Sydney, Australia. Prior to joining the ship in San Francisco, the Kjekstads will visit friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cox, in Seattle. After visiting Australia they will return via Honolulu, spending three weeks in the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. and Mrs. Kjekstad plan to return to their up-island home at the end of April.

Valentine's Dance

Heart's Delight is title of a Valentine's Dance to be presented by the Royal Jubilee Hospital alumnae next Friday evening at Holyrood House. Len Acres will play for dancing at the annual affair.

From England

Mrs. Bentley Lloyd has been visiting Victoria for the past month and is presently staying at Old Charming Inn. She will be returning to her home in Shropshire, Eng., in mid-February.

To Montreal

En route to Montreal where she plans to take a post-graduate course in nursing is Miss Ann Copeman of this city. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Copeman of Oliver Street, Miss Copeman graduated from Vancouver General Hospital and University.

Victoria Council Women Annual Meeting Planned

Sixty-sixth annual meeting of Victoria Council of Women will be held in the Public Library music room next Monday and Tuesday. Mrs. Bert Noel will preside.

Reports of executive officers will be heard on Monday morning and election will be held.

New officers will be introduced Monday afternoon before an address "A Title in Every Home" to be given by

Gold Cord Presented At Saanich Meeting

Ranger Karen Cronk received Girl Guides' highest award, the Gold Cord, from division commissioner Mrs. J. McKeown, at annual meeting of Guiders and Local Association, Saanich Division.

Mrs. McKeown also presented Mrs. B. Cooke, who is retiring as a Brown Owl with a thanks badge from members of Sea Lake District, and a captain's warrant to Mrs. K. Cantwell, Sidney.

District Commissioner Mrs. F. King presented Miss Gail McKeown, Solarium Guide Company, with a Lieutenant's warrant, and Mrs. A. Stoppa, Gladstone Tawny Owl, with a tenderfoot pin.

Australian Women Vote Since 1902; Only 5 Years in Parliament

MONTREAL (CP) Senator Nancy Buttfield of Australia says her country gave women the vote before Canada, but, to her regret, it didn't elect a woman to Parliament until five years ago. That's when she entered the Senate.

Mrs. Buttfield, a Liberal from Adelaide, South Australia, was in Montreal during a world tour to study what other countries are doing to attract tourists. Her itinerary called for stops at Ottawa, Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver.

SENATORS ELECTED

In an interview she discussed woman's place in politics in her country. Since her election, she said, three other women have become senators but Australia's lower house is still a male sanctuary. In Australia both senators and members of the lower house are elected.

Women were given the vote nationally in Australia in 1902, some 15 years before they could vote in federal elections in Canada and Britain.

It was the Australian women's own fault that there was a lapse of more than 50 years between suffrage and representation in Parliament, she said.

LACK INTEREST

"Admittedly it is generally impossible for a woman with young children to play an active role in politics. But Australian women don't have a broad interest in anything outside their own homes. I have spent much of my time just trying to get them to read the newspapers."

Mrs. Buttfield said she "loathes" to be considered first and foremost as a woman politician but she plans to run for re-election.

"My husband Frank tells me, 'for heaven's sake don't get beaten or it will be impossible to live with you!'

A mother of two grown sons, she is a member of the Australian immigration advisory council and is on the foreign affairs committee. But she spends a lot of time trying to interest other women in politics.

GOOD BUT LONG—One of the most underrated

ELECTRONIC SHAKESPEARE—No sooner had Hallmark Hall of Fame's 90 minute adaptation of William Shakespeare's "The Tempest" concluded Wednesday night, than the phone commenced ringing. It seems the show had made some of our city's devotees to the Bard extremely happy. One caller went so far as to say that there were parts that were as good as he had ever witnessed anywhere.

Frankly, I like Tennessee Williams' no favorite of mine, being more inclined to Shakespeare's historicals. Nonetheless, I had a feeling that if Will were alive today, he would have delighted in the magic wrought by the electronic medium, possibly even forgiving the liberties taken with rearranging some of the sequences for the purpose of making it easier to follow.

As Prospero, Maurice Evans was superb as was Richard Burton as Caliban. Lee Remick's Miranda was winsome, her acting good although I thought her diction in some instances was not as neat as one would have liked.

Especially effective, I thought, was Roddy McDowell as Ariel. The electronic wizardry here was wondrous as it was on so many other occasions, making the world of make-believe more believable than the stage could ever hope to do.

For the success of the whole bouquets to George Schaefer, who produced and directed the elegant vehicle, not forgetting Rouben Ter-Arutunian for his beautiful sets. Neither should one forget John Edward Friend who wrote the imaginative interpretation nor Lehman Engel who composed and conducted the musical score.

BIG FORTUNE IN GOLD BANKED BY DALAI LAMA

NEW DELHI (TAP)—The exiled Dalai Lama has deposited in Calcutta banks a sizeable fortune in gold which he sent out of Tibet ahead of the Chinese Communists, authoritative sources said Thursday.

Several hundred mule-loads of gold bars were sent from Tibet when the Chinese invaded in 1951. The gold was hidden in the Gangtok mountain-top capital of Sikkim.

Last month the gold was moved out of Gangtok in the early hours of the morning by truck and flown at sunrise from a nearby airport to Calcutta.

Deportee's Wife Queries Appeal

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—The wife of Weldon Chan, whose attempts to have a deportation order against him lifted were rejected by the British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday, says she doubts whether the case is worth appealing.

"It is a lot of trouble," said Mrs. Alice Chan. "I don't want to go back to Hong Kong because the pay there is very little and there are too many people."

"But we could go to England. I don't know if they, her husband, and lawyer Harry Fan want to try again. I suppose we will try again."

LOCAL BRIEFS

A faulty gas range vent opening into a second floor wall of Apt. 9 at 1222 View caused flames to burn into the attic shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

City firemen said damage was moderate to the wall and an adjoining bathroom.

"Horsing around" in his friend's car sent Anthony Robert Turner, 19, of 952 Richmond, into city police court Thursday charged with interfering with a driver's control. He pleaded guilty and was fined $20.

Police said a lot of noise was coming from the car in which Turner was a passenger. When it was checked, the driver said Turner kept switching off the ignition key and pulling on the hand brake.

"I was just horsing around," police quoted Turner.

Royal Oak Burial For RCAF Pilot

Burial took place recently in Royal Oak of Flt-Lient. Dale A. Hughes, who died suddenly in Toronto, aged 41.

Mrs. Hughes lives here at 145 Wildwood Avenue. The couple were en route from Bermuda to Winnipeg when death occurred. They had vacationed in Bermuda following his illness.

Born in the Maritimes, Flt-Lient. Hughes graduated in 1940 from Mount Allison University and was an RCAF pilot during the Second World War.

He had since been stationed at Camp Borden, Ont., Trenton, Ont., MacDonald, Man., and Winnipeg.

A military funeral was held at the RCAF chapel in Winnipeg.

Ross officiating.

Survivors include the widow, Isabel; three sons, Robert, 8; William, 6, and John, 4; and in provincial departments.

Hughes' mother, Mrs. John W. Hughes, of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, received $12,500.

Victoria's civic auditorium committee met for the first time Thursday and quickly cleared the way for a detailed feasibility study.

The committee:

Named Ald. A. L. Curtis as chairman; added city engineer J. C. Garnett as a member; scheduled regular monthly meetings; asked city council for a $250 budget; asked the Chamber of Commerce to lend it a special file on previous auditorium studies; and asked other cities with civic auditoria to send along useful information.

It learned:

Radio station CFAX will donate a giant theatre organ to a civic theatre if the building is designed to take it; Mayor Percy Scourah will appoint one more member to the committee from the ranks of Victoria Labor Council; Ken and Stephenson is willing to negotiate sale of the Royal Theatre as an auditorium.

The committee also reached preliminary agreement that provision of an ice sheet would not be considered for an auditorium.

"Concerts and conventions are the things we must consider," said Mrs. Audrey St. D. Johnson. She added, for this reason it also was essential that the auditorium have a sloping floor.

W. C. Mearns said he would try to find some expert, either connected with the University of British Columbia or the Queen Elizabeth auditorium in Vancouver, to address the committee on some of the problems to be overcome in building an auditorium.

He also suggested that Express Hotel manager Cyril Chapman be asked for his advice "because he's very familiar with the problems here and because they have handled many conventions, it would be useful to get his views."

Mrs. Johnson said many organizations have expressed a need for meeting rooms and these should be incorporated in the auditorium design.

But Ald. Curtis warned that the city should avoid competing with private business in the meeting hall field.

"There is a certain amount of criticism of church halls being used for meetings and I think we should try to avoid that," he said.

Ken A. Calder, president of Merchant Cartage Company Limited, made the remark following discussions on new truck licence fees for 1960.

"We've got the sickest industry in B.C.," he added.

Provincial government licences for light and medium trucks will increase by an estimated 32 per cent effective March 1 and on bigger trucks the increase may be as much as 228 per cent.

B.C. To Press
For Lower
Rail Rates

British Columbia will demand that any federal subsidy for national railways, resulting from the current royal commission freight rate studies, must bring downward rates for shippers, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said in the Legislature Thursday.

He said it is obvious from representations of the CNR and CPR to the royal commission, "that from their viewpoint any subsidy will merely be added to general revenue of the railways," after which they may or may not make adjustments to rates.

He said, "this policy will be firmly opposed by British Columbia . . . we will insist to the royal commission and the federal government . . . that those shippers who have had to bear unduly high freight rates, on account of losses suffered by the railways on export grain, passenger service, etc., must obtain downward rate adjustments."

Mr. Bonner said he was referring to B.C. lumber, plywood, fruit and vegetables and metals. "We will not agree to leave the correction of this basic inequity to the discretion of the railways."

Mr. Bonner said he was referring to B.C. lumber, plywood, fruit and vegetables and metals. "We will not agree to leave the correction of this basic inequity to the discretion of the railways."

The charge listed for public debt was up to $5,348,191 from $2,664,945.

The premier's pay was raised to $12,000 from $10,000.

Ross officiating.

(OSCAR CLASS) "PILLOW TALK" (Odeon): Universal International's "Pillow Talk" should be considered, the comedy "sleeper" of the year. As intimate as a bundling board it might have been named, "Sorry Wrong Slumber!"

It concerns Doris Day who doesn't like the guy on the other end of the party line, gay, debonair, song-writing Rock Hudson, who is very broad-minded. In fact Hudson spends so many of his waking hours thinking about broads that you commence to wonder where he finds the time to think about his musical compositions.

Then one day he meets and realizes that Doris is the irate girl on the other end of the party line. He knows, however, that if he introduces himself as himself he will end up making time backwards. So he palms himself off on the dedicated interior decorator as an earnest, shy young man who owns a mountain in Texas and yearns for the simple life.

Now such double-dealing is not new to movie plots, having been used since cavemen wrote tales about gentlemen dinosaurs chasing lady dinosaurs. But under director Michael Gordon's skilled hand Stanley Shapiro and Maurice Richlin's screenplay takes on a breathless air of fun thanks to some artful, split-screen photography and gay use of color that does magical things to old New York, especially at night.

MISS DAY, who improves with each opportunity, is a delight to behold and Hudson turns in a surprisingly sparkling chore. But it is possibly talented Tony Randall, as the millionaire backing Hudson's show and Miss Day's would-be-lover, who is responsible mostly for the depth of the plot that really is lighter than the celebrated cake that mother used to bake. Nor should one forget Thelma Ritter who is excellent as Miss Day's hard-drinking maid and confidante.

The two groups will be junior from ages 9 to 11 and intermediate from 12 to 17.

The intermediate group will have this week's outing. They will meet at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot for a field trip to Land's End at Deep Cove. If weather is too bad, the group will hold a meeting instead at the Pioneers' Cabin at Saanichton Agricultural Grounds.

Total membership in the branch is close to 60. Teams of parents of the children take turns in transporting the youngsters on their weekly outings. Mr. King supervises and teaches the young members on woods lore. Close supervision is required and that is the reason for the division of the group.

THE FORESTRY INDUSTRY

will be discussed Monday at 8:15 p.m. by Dr. George S. Allen, dean of the University of British Columbia's forestry faculty, at a university extension lecture open to the public in Victoria University.

Junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society has become attractive to the youngsters of Greater Victoria, it is having to curtail its activities.

Freeman King, leader of the group, said today membership has grown to the point where the branch has had to be divided.

This means that instead of the youngsters going on weekly outings they'll be going every other Saturday on hikes and visits to various points of interest on southern Vancouver Island.

He also suggested that Express Hotel manager Cyril Chapman be asked for his advice "because he's very familiar with the problems here and because they have handled many conventions, it would be useful to get his views."

Mrs. Johnson said many organizations have expressed a need for meeting rooms and these should be incorporated in the auditorium design.

'E(xcess)P(rofits) Taylor—The Crushing Croesus'

This is part one in the story of E. P. Taylor, one of Canada's most successful businessmen, and is the 11th in a series based on the book "The Big Four," by Peter C. Newman, dealing with the giants of Canadian industry. Book $3.50 published by Longmans' Green and Co., Toronto.

By PETER C. NEWMAN
E. P. Taylor is the most successful Canadian businessman of his generation, and one of the most influential financiers in the world.

Canadians feel with a vague uneasiness that however they spend their pay cheques, they will inevitably enrich this gray-top-hatted eminence, pictured so often in the sports pages, binoculars perched on portly stomach, blandly accepting his latest racing trophy.

Taylor is condemned by socialists as "the crushing Croesus of big business," by Communists as "E(xcess) P(rofits) Taylor—the mad miser of millions," and by righteous temperance advocates as the beer baron personally responsible for the plight of every Canadian alcoholic.

Even the established financial aristocracy regards with suspicion a colleague whose ferocious appetite for swallowing companies is unmatched in the annals of Canadian business.

'Not for Money'

Taylor is genuinely puzzled by these and other accusations. He insists that he is always been concerned with progress and achievement, not money and profits.

"I don't work at high pressure and I don't work for money," he insists. "Maybe I did initially, but certainly not now."

E. P. Taylor's personal creed is that of an unbridled entrepreneur who has mastered the workings of capitalism. He regards the free enterprise system primarily as a successful arrangement of human affairs in such a way that maximum benefits inevitably accrue to those who are the most adept.

He preaches that the good industrialist must do well for everyone—for his shareholders, customers and employees as well as for himself. How, he asks can you put an artificial limit on the size of a business and still hope to preserve such a discipline?

Taylor's detractors maintain that he has mutilated the free enterprise idea, which is meant to encourage venture capital into establishing new industry, thus raising the general standard of living.

100 Corporations

Of the 100 or so corporations within Taylor's orbit, he himself has established only three relatively insignificant firms. The balance of Taylor's industrial holdings are based on the acquisition of what others have built.

Using his grandfather's

Higher Court Possible In Drug Case

Trial on the first of 13 charges for drug possession faced by 46-year-old James Scoular, in city police court Wednesday became a preliminary hearing by the magistrate's ruling.

Scoular, of 931 Inverness, pleaded not guilty to being in possession of dolophine last October, contrary to the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act.

Magistrate William Ostler heard the Crown's evidence and rather than let the case proceed as a trial he treated it as a preliminary hearing, with the resulting possibility the matter will go before a higher court for trial.

Magistrate Ostler recently dismissed a similar charge against Scoular in Oak Bay police court.

The city case was remanded to Monday, when the defense may call evidence.

Trading Breweries Ltd. in Ottawa as the first link, Taylor has daisy-chained 30 breweries in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, British Columbia and seven states of the U.S. into Canadian Breweries Ltd. It is the world's largest brewing organization; sales average almost $1 million a day.

Taylor's other interests have made the group he heads a major influence in Canada's pulp and paper, chemical, agricultural implements, food and merchandise industries.

His Commonwealth of companies—cobwebbed through tiers of loosely connected holding subsidiaries—employs 80,000, has gross annual sales of $1.5 billion and indirectly affects the economic well-being of almost every Canadian family.

Bigger Than GM

The magnitude of this industrial complex is most dramatically illustrated by the fact that its sales account for a far greater proportion of Canada's gross national product than does General Motors in the context of the U.S. economy.

"I look for companies where no very large shareholder exists," Taylor explains. "With my partners, I buy enough stock to give us effective control. Then the company holds our view."

In the process of expanding the flock of firms he shepherds, Taylor and his group have since the war channelled public investment of more than $600 million into plant facilities.

Of the many misconceptions about Taylor, none is more prevalent than the belief that he owns all the firms with which he is associated. In Canadian Breweries, for instance, Taylor's personal ownership totals only 12,600 of the 3,069,411 issued shares, although Argus Corp., the holding company he heads, carries on its books another 400,000 shares.

In Argus itself, Taylor has about a quarter of the voting stock. This fraction plus the shares controlled by his partners give him 40 per cent of Argus' 1,370,272 shares.

E. P. TAYLOR

Argus, in turn, holds more than $117 million in stocks in Dominion Stores, Canadian Breweries, Massey-Ferguson, Dominion Tar and Chemical, St. Lawrence Corp., and a few smaller firms. By being the largest single shareholder in each of these, with holdings ranging from 13.75 per cent in Canadian Breweries to 25 per cent in St. Lawrence Corp., Argus can place enough directors on their boards to control policy.

No 'Colonialism'

Taylor has purposely made the idea of colonialism in running his empire as obsolete as it has become in politics.

He refuses to concern himself with the administration of his companies beyond high matters of policy and finance—provided management continues to produce what he regards as a fair return on capital. "I like developing, not operating," he says. "I lose interest in a business situation when it begins to run smoothly."

Because he won't buy speculative shares, Toronto stockbrokers have taken him off their mailing lists. He has thus deliberately cut himself off from any interest in the oil, gas and mining industries—the most buoyant sectors of Canada's postwar economy.

The diversity of Taylor's holdings is not accidental. He has an uncanny ability of thinking simultaneously along divergent lines. His mind works like a telephone exchange, shifting from one set of company figures to another and back again without loss of continuity.

"Eddie can read a balance sheet like a poem, and tell you where it doesn't scan," an associate once remarked admiringly.

He's a big man—six-feet tall and 200 pounds—and his shiny-cheerful face is grooved by pugnacity and laughter lines. Bushy brows overhang eyes of feral flint.

He is delighted when callers spread the impression of him as a tweedy, square more interested in horses than corporation profits. He begins telephone calls by chuckling: "This is Eddie!"

Aside from his extensive horse-racing interests, Taylor has few diversions. He is not religious, but will occasionally attend St. John's Anglican Church, near his North Toronto home.

The business passions of E. P. Taylor drive him 100,000 miles a year in constant commuting between his investments, partly aboard the private aircraft maintained by his companies.

600-Acre Farm

He spends most of his working time in the five-room cottage on his 600-acre farm off Toronto's Bayview Avenue that houses his personal staff of seven assistants.

The front of Taylor's office—furnished like a living-room with soft beige carpet and stone fireplace—is a picture window opening out on his estate. His desk is a simple oak table piled with documents. Taylor usually arrives at 9 in the morning, following a leisurely breakfast in bed, but his working day is erratic, often interrupted by visits to the track or his stables.

Despite his membership in 19 clubs, Taylor's social contacts are deliberately limited. He attends few dinners and makes fewer speeches.

SATURDAY—PART TWO OF THE E. P. TAYLOR STORY.

150 Bundles Of Clothes For Refugees

Close to 3½ tons of used clothing collected for Hong Kong refugees by the Junior Chamber of Commerce will be shipped today in 150 large bundles.

Objective in the week-long drive was three tons, "so we are extremely pleased," said campaign chairman George Gaddie.

The clothing will be sent to Hong Kong Jaycees for distribution.

Last arrival clothing will be shipped to Korea.

Wives of Jaycees sorted and packaged the goods at First Baptist Church.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

'Turbocraft' Water Jet

Marpole Rotary Boat Show, first of the B.C. marine displays for this year, will open Monday at the Pacific Show Mart Building in Vancouver's Exhibition Park with some exciting new products on view.

Most novel will be the "turbocraft" boat driven by a centrifugal pump which takes water through a vent in the bottom of the hull and throws it to the rear.

Manufacturers, claim 35 miles per hour with a 16-foot runabout with no clutch, no transmission, no rudder, and no conventional reverse gear. It will manoeuvre like mad, operate in a heavy dew, and has nothing projecting from the hull to become damaged or to injure water skiers.

A Victoria marine firm has an exclusive agency for this craft for Vancouver Island.

A prototype is undergoing extensive tests here, and production models will be available early in the spring.

For several years installations featuring inboard motors and outboard drive have reached the market, but none have survived. Now it appears that Sweden, with an "automatic" unit featuring a lively four-cylinder, four-cycle inboard engine, and sleek, but sturdy outboard unit, might have a good one.

As will be seen in the up-

EXCITING NEW PRODUCTS

coming show, the engine requires no bed, but is hung directly from the boat transom by a housing at the drive end. Propeller thrust compensates for weight, and the whole unit takes up no more space than a big outboard.

A one-man car-top boat loader listed for the show is supposed to enable a person of average strength to load and unload craft of up to 14 feet length and 250 pounds in weight, and there will be some new designs in boat trailers which sound interesting.

One firm will show hydrofoil kits, available for the first time for use on outboard hulls of 14 and 16 feet. Made of

T. EATON CO.
CANADA UNITED

IN THE HOUSE

WITH

Norman Cubbens

The legislature was anchored down Thursday with a weighty commentary on the future of our province by Attorney-General and Trade Minister Robert Bonner.

As usual, Mr. Bonner took the weight off his report with a little dry humor.

"Most of us," he said, "go home at night to a perfect gale of TV and see more violence in 25 minutes than we experienced during the whole of the war."

He spoke, of course, as an old soldier, wounded in Sicily. But the point of his remark seemed to be that, with all the mechanical diversions we have today, British Columbians think less about their future than did our forebears of 100 years ago.

Those early British Columbians, he said, had a remarkable foresight. Their descendants were much too modest about their future.

"Don't tell me your government is modest," quipped Arthur Turner, the CCF member for Vancouver East.

"I am suggesting that we in B.C. are in for much greater things, physically and materially, than we imagine," Mr. Bonner replied.

For that reason, he felt, we should take "a broader view" of those two great power sources—the Peace River and the Columbia.

Next came a witty commentary on Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi by Mrs. Lois Haggen, the charming CCF member for Grand Forks-Greenwood.

Blue-eyed Mrs. Haggen confessed, amid laughter, that she found Mr. Gagliardi "simply fascinating."

"He talks in millions of dollars," she said, "and jumps all over the province in telling us of all the great projects that are going on . . . but when he has finished speaking you wonder which highway you are on."

Mrs. Haggen said Mr. Gagliardi reminded her of a passage from "Alice Through the Looking Glass":

"They gazed and gazed and still the wonder grew that one small head could hold all it knew."

None laughed louder than Mr. Gagliardi.

"She's quite a gal," he said in the corridors. "Quite a gal."

Mrs. Haggen created more diversion by referring to John Tisdalle, the dark prophetic-looking MLA for Saanich as "the honorable member for Sand-Wich."

Apprized of this error, she added: "I'm afraid I thought of him as a sandwich because when he spoke to us yesterday he surrounded himself with every kind of milk carton."

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz—a man with a difficult job—celebrated his birthday in the chair and received "happy returns" from every side.

Whatever its shortcomings, this is a good-humored House.

Two Out of Three U.S. Missile Score

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — United States missile teams, busy on both coasts, recorded a successful doubleheader at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and a delayed fizzle at this base Thursday.

The Discoverer IX satellite rocket left its pad at Vandenberg in fine form, but officers at the California installation announced later that the rocket failed to achieve orbital velocity.

The army later said the test series for the liquid-fuelled Jupiter had been completed four months ahead of time.

The Jupiter launching was the 30th for the army ballistic missile agency. Of the previous shots, 22 were rated successful, five partially so and two failures. The Jupiter soon will be deployed with NATO in Italy and Turkey.

Discoverer IX, like all but the first Discoverer rocket, carried an instrumented capsule designed to be ejected from the orbiting second stage and snatched from the air by planes 26 hours after launching. This manoeuvre has failed every time.

'HITLER WAS RIGHT' SAYS SWASITKA DAUBER

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI)—One of the two young Germans who touched off the recent wave of anti-Semitic incidents told a court here today he thinks that in some respects Adolf Hitler was right.

Arnold Strunk and Paul J. Schoenen admitted desecrating the Cologne Synagogue on Christmas Eve, the act which set off a wave of similar incidents around the world.

Strunk said that, although he believes "many aspects of Hitler's Third Reich should be reintroduced in Germany," he did not agree with every act of the Hitler regime.

"I condemn the Nazi murders of Jews, but I believe Jews should not be allowed to hold high positions," he said. "When I painted swastikas on the synagogue, I wanted to give vent to my inner feelings."

B.C. FORCED, SAYS STRACHAN

'Profit in Advance' Sought From Peace

Peace River Power Development Company will only agree to develop the Peace if the end results provide huge profits at the expense of the consumer, CCF leader Robert Strachan said Thursday.

Speaking at the Esquimalt-Saanich CCF Association annual dinner, he referred to a letter filed in the legislature Wednesday by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

Signed by W. C. Mainwaring, president of PRPD Company, it states the company will only proceed with the project if it "completes satisfactory arrangements with its proposed customers."

Only by the government forcing the B.C. Power Commission to sign agreements to purchase expensive power can this scheme go ahead as proposed, said Mr. Strachan.

"Sum total of all this is the Social Credit government has been led into making 'firm commitments' to give the Wenner-Gren company all it wants, but the company has been smart enough to leave itself in a position where it can drop the whole scheme by pleading it has no firm customers, cannot find necessary finance . . . and therefore is not an economic development."

Cruise Schedule Announced for Esquimalt Ships

Official itinerary for three RCN Pacific Command destroyers which leave Monday on an extended Pacific cruise was announced Thursday by RCN headquarters at Ottawa.

HMC Ships Saguenay, Ottawa and St. Laurent, will leave at 2 p.m.; reach Long Beach, Calif., Feb. 14; arrive at Pearl Harbor Feb. 23; Yokosuka, Japan, March 7; Okinawa, March 16; Hong Kong, March 21; Okinawa area, March 31 to April 9; Kobe, Japan, April 11.

The destroyers will leave Kobe April 14, returning home by the Great Circle route and stopping at Adak, Alaskan Islands, April 21-22. They are due back April 29.

The destroyers will leave Kona April 14, returning home by the Great Circle route and stopping at Adak, Alaskan Islands, April 21-22. They are due back April 29.

MANUFACTURERS' BRIEF

'Hold Taxes' Ottawa Asked

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in its annual pre-budget briefs presented today to the government, said personal and corporate income taxes are already too high and urged that there be no further increases in the coming budget.

A delegation headed by CMA president W. H. Evans of Toronto presented briefs to the ministers of finance, national revenue and commerce.

The government was asked to take a lead in holding down costs by avoiding additions to public expenditures, at least until the federal budget allows reduction of personal and corporation income taxes to the pre-1959 level. Last year's increases, the delegation said, should be recognized as temporary.

Delegates asked the government to take steps to control imports from low-wage countries and urged that the tariff board be asked to review those sections of the customs tariff which are "out-of-date" with the purpose of establishing new simplified schedules.

Abolition or substantial reduction as soon as revenue conditions permit, of special excise taxes on automobiles, radios, cosmetics and a variety of other goods, was recommended.

Lifting of sales taxes on articles and materials entering into the cost of manufacture or production of goods was also asked.

Another recommendation asked for a new crown corporation to encourage and facilitate Canadian export trade by providing facilities for the financing of Canada exports requiring medium and long-term credits, on terms comparable and competitive, both as to duration and cost, with those available in other exporting countries.

Strike Called

LONDON (AP)—A union order Wednesday called on London subway train crews to join the Feb. 15 national rail strike.

The walkout would leave some 3,000,000 commuters without public transport, short of squeezing aboard the city's already overloaded fleet of red double-decker buses.

EDGELOW DENIES LAND INTEREST

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said Thursday that if he was thinking of himself he would "keep Thetis Lake as wild as all get-out."

He denied that he held any interest in property that might be affected by the B.C. Electric power line easement through the park that he has advocated.

Speculation of an ulterior motive arose because he lives a short distance from the park property.

But Ald. Edgelow emphasized that he favored the power line easement because the money would help develop the park without costing taxpayers anything.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Stock Yields Average High

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

In every cloud there is a silver lining, goes the song, and the firm of Moss Lawson & Co. would have you believe it.

One happy aspect of the current depressed market for those with fresh money to invest is that stock yields now average the highest in 18 months, says Moss Lawson.

This week's average return on 64 common stocks, calculated by Miss Lawson is 4.23 per cent, highest since July 21, 1958.

Sid Smith, CLU, a representative of Great West Life Assurance here, has been selected to represent Victoria Life Underwriters' Association at the 33rd annual meeting of the Life Underwriters of Canada

at Montreal, Feb. 10-12. Two Victoria men were among three Shell Oil employees honored on retirement last week in Vancouver. C. R. "Charlie" Casellen, born and educated in Victoria, joined Shell in 1923 as a truck driver in Victoria. R. D. "Bob" Cameron, native Victorian, joined Shell in 1939 as an automotive mechanic.

The stock market was all agog this week about two stocks which have been going in opposite directions.

Timeliest ticker topic was Canadian Collieries, CC Thursday, which churned a thumping 67,648 shares for three-eighths of a point gain to $10. This means nearly three-quarters of a million dollars was involved which is big league trading even in this age of the inflated dollar.

Brokers say most of the trading originated in Vancouver where the head office is located. Unconfirmed rumors swirled (see TIMES, Jan. 30) that CC, basically a coal mining and timber firm, would go into real estate. There also was talk of a takeover offer and that CC would develop iron ore properties.

Richard Whittall, son of the president of CC, Norman Whittall, emphatically denied the rumors in a telephone conversation.

He hinted at an announcement in the "near future," said he was endeavoring to bring the directors together for an important meeting.

A few hours later Mr. Norman Whittall said what insiders predicted he would: negotiations are going on for the sale of Canadian Collieries. He didn't identify the company which many believe is the vast Weyerhaeuser timber firm of Washington.

Mr. Whittall did say that no concrete offer is available to date and one is not likely to become firm before Feb. 29.

Getting a lot of conversational play along with Canadian Collieries is Cockshutt Farm Equipment.

Cockshutt plunged 2% to a 1960 low of 19% in the wake of developments at the annual meeting this week in Toronto.

Brokers noted Cockshutt rose sharply recently (from $16 to $25) on rumors investors apparently felt were not borne out at the meeting.

Heavy selling, say brokers, may indicate investors' disappointment over the resignation of the board chairman and three directors.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BLAMED FOR WIDENING RIFT

Anti-Labor 'Pressure' Charged

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is exerting pressure on the Canadian government, designed to weaken the labor movement. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council charged here Thursday.

In an address to Victoria Rotary Club, he said there was a "serious" tendency at present to widen differences between labor and management.

So troubled was the present labor-management scene, he continued, that it can lead back to conflicts of years past.

This meant that there exists a "real need" for increasingly constructive talks between labor and management.

He said there are efforts by certain management groups to have legislation relating to labor and management revised, and that even now the "great volume" of such laws is liable to "hinder rather than help" liaison between the two groups.

SLICK PHRASES

"Too many slick phrases are being used," in labor legislation, he charged.

Therefore it is not surprising, he went on, that the workers "feel against" the laws which may be used to take away what they consider their rights.

Mr. Toone added that "in some instances, these suspicions may be well founded."

He said Bill 43, passed by the B.C. government last year, "restricts and takes away" civil liberties and rights of workers, and is designed to squash "the rights of workers wherever possible."

There has been wide acceptance of Bill 43 amongst employers, he pointed out.

"We note with alarm," Mr. Toone said, that the B.C. government was "the first in the free world" to "prohibit peaceful picketing."

On other subjects, the speaker said while labor was not opposed to increased industrial efficiency, "advanced warning" of changes regarding automation would be appreciated.

He said "we all" prefer trade competition rather than competition with Russia.

And the relationship between labor and management has a definite bearing on production, as no country can have sufficient production when the two spheres are in conflict.

DIRECT OFFENSIVE

He said labor generally will resist any right-to-work legislation with all its might, as this would constitute a "direct offensive against labor."

He indicated the possibility of such legislation did not seem remote.

When dictatorships grow—either individual dictatorships or those by other means—the first objects to be attacked are the trade unions, he said.

He said the next to go is the free enterprise system, by a close second."

Labor, he pointed out, was asking for more than "a few cents an hour." It was asking for its proper place in administration of any help for the worker.

But labor's suggestion to the federal government to call for a management-labor conference to iron out difficulties had met with no response, either from government or from employers, he said.

MATHEMATICS

The abacus, the first, and some still say the fastest of adding machines, is an early measure of progress—and thus a symbol.

The triangle is Grant's own symbol of mathematical, almost astronomical, growth.

Back in 1887, William Grant and his sons built their own distillery, with their own hands, in the Scottish Highlands. Now, the family firm owns and directs two of the largest malt distilleries in all Scotland.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BLAMED FOR WIDENING RIFT

Anti-Labor 'Pressure' Charged

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is exerting pressure on the Canadian government, designed to weaken the labor movement. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Labor Council charged here Thursday.

And the relationship between labor and management has a definite bearing on production, as no country can have sufficient production when the two spheres are in conflict.

DIRECT OFFENSIVE

He said labor generally will resist any right-to-work legislation with all its might, as this would constitute a "direct offensive against labor."

So troubled was the present labor-management scene, he continued, that it can lead back to conflicts of years past.

This meant that there exists a "real need" for increasingly constructive talks between labor and management.

He said there are efforts by certain management groups to have legislation relating to labor and management revised, and that even now the "great volume" of such laws is liable to "hinder rather than help" liaison between the two groups.

He said there are efforts by certain management groups to have legislation relating to labor and management revised, and that even now the "great volume" of such laws is liable to "hinder rather than help" liaison between the two groups.

He indicated the possibility of such legislation did not seem remote.

When dictatorships grow—either individual dictatorships or those by other means—the first objects to be attacked are the trade unions, he said.

He said the next to go is the free enterprise system, by a close second."

Labor, he pointed out, was asking for more than "a few cents an hour." It was asking for its proper place in administration of any help for the worker.

But labor's suggestion to the federal government to call for a management-labor conference to iron out difficulties had met with no response, either from government or from employers, he said.

MANY AND VARIED SITES OFFERED FOR QUEEN'S BUST

Oh Where, Oh Where Should It Go?

By JOHN MIKA

Shades of the 1st permanent balloons!

Victorians and non-Victorians are overflowing with suggestions on what to do with the concrete bust of Queen Elizabeth.

The seven-foot-tall 800-pound statue is resting temporarily in the City Hall lobby while parks committee wrestles with the problem of where it should be located permanently.

And just as it did with the balloon problem — remember that one? — the public is volunteering dozens of solutions.

Latest suggestion was made by Alex Baird, connected with the Highland Games Association, who says it should be put in one of the Government House gardens.

IVY CLAD

If located near the driveway, with ivy creeping up the long shaft bearing the Queen's likeness, it would be a treasured addition to the landscape, he feels.

Other suggested locations: the Causeway, Empress Hotel lawn, Parliament Buildings lawn, Butchart Gardens, the new Law Courts building.

Two persons have offered to buy the bust for use as tourist attractions: Sam Lane, proprietor of the Olde England Inn and Giuseppe Roat who runs a private museum at Qualicum Beach and has described the statue as a "Royal Orphan."

Saanich council, which is sharing the cost anyway, has offered to take the bust and find it a permanent home.

CUT OFF

But several City Hall officials would like to see the long concrete column supporting the bust cut off and the Queen's likeness only given to the Greater Victoria Art Gallery.

Others have suggested the City Hall lobby as a permanent location for the work but has stumped city parks committee, city council and even intermunicipal committee so far.

In any event, the location problem has grown from a molehill into a mountain that has stumped city parks committee, city council and even intermunicipal committee so far.

Incidentally, the centennial balloon problem isn't solved yet either.

A trustee committee handling clean-up of the centennial projects will meet soon to have another go at trying to dispose of the seven-foot-diameter balloons — possibly as an attraction for the coming world's fair in Seattle.

21 FOR 8

TOMORROW

A 21-gun salute marking accession to the throne eight years ago of Queen Elizabeth will be fired at noon Saturday from the Causeway by the 5th B.C. Independent Medium Battery, R.C.A.

The firing party of four gun crews will be commanded by Lieutenant Derek Eleoate.

City Considers Billboard Ban

Bylaw Revision Aimed At Large-Sized Signs

Large billboards dotting Victoria streets will vanish within three years if a proposed revision of the city sign bylaw is adopted.

Public works committee today received the draft revision for study and decided to hold a special meeting in two weeks when interested business men will be heard.

Major change proposed in the existing regulations, which date back to 1938, is elimination of the huge billboards.

The draft bylaw would ban all billboards except those under 16 square feet in size. A limit of two on any single parcel of land also would be enforced.

That's a sharp reduction from the existing billboard sizes running between 200 and 300 square feet.

The draft bylaw would put a three-year deadline on pulling down the big billboards.

Other features of the existing sign provisions would be changed to streamline administration and tighten civic control over the sign problem.

But projecting signs over city streets still would be allowed.

All-Parties Power Study Suggested

An alparty committee of the B.C. legislature, headed by Premier Bennett, should attend a Columbia Basin Inter-Agency Commission meeting at Seattle in April. B.C. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault urged here today.

He said he is informed a date is being negotiated for the meeting with Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission which is working toward Columbia development, who is invited to attend.

The Columbia Basin Committee, established by the U.S. federal government, consists of representatives of seven federal departments in six northern states.

IMPORTANT

Mr. Perrault said the meeting is described by U.S. authorities as important and "clear evidence of our desire for an early Columbia agreement on an equitable basis . . . and a desire to know Canadian views."

Mr. Perrault said the meeting would go beyond party bounds "if our provincial government is sincere in its desire for an early Columbia agreement, it should take the lead with a tangible demonstration of British Columbia's interest."

Governors of six states and representatives of public and private power companies in the area will be invited.

Open House Set At Banfield Lodge Housing Project

An "open house" will serve as official opening of Banfield Lodge Feb. 14.

The first completed project of the Victoria Senior Citizens Housing Society is located at 1230 Styles, off Craigflower.

Although occupied since July, various events have prevented an official opening ceremony earlier.

Municipal Affairs Minister W. D. Black will unveil a bronze plaque at the 2:30 p.m. open house and Rev. R. Kendall will give the invocation.

Guides will conduct tours of the building.

ASK The TIMES

Q. When a couple are granted a divorce in the Supreme Court, here, what is the minimum waiting period before they can remarry? R.T.

A. Forty-five days.

Q. How many miles of highways have we in Canada? J.B.

A. Close to 140,000 miles. This includes highways, proper and secondary roads.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve community problems. If you have a question, attempt to put it in writing on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Q. Who can answer your question? A. Invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times." Editor's questions and answers will be published daily.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Reeve George Murdoch and Oak Bay's council will be guests of Oak Bay Klwanians Thursday at the weekly dinner in Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Speaker will be Mr. Murdoch. His subject will deal with the problem of juvenile delinquency and need for a family and juvenile court.

Seven new members will be inducted at the meeting, all Oak Bay residents.

Robert Arnold Horton, 18, Work Point, was fined $20 in city police court Thursday when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of gin.

Driver of a car in collision with a paper carrier early Sunday was fined $250 for impaired driving when he appeared in Saanich police court Thursday.

Emil Charity, 882 Canterbury, pleaded guilty to the charge Monday and was remanded for probation report.

Magistrate William Ostler suspended Charity's licence for one month.

Prison Sentence Of Two Years In Sweater Theft.

Wilfred Black, no fixed address, was sentenced by Magistrate William Ostler in city police court today to two years less one day in Oakalla prison for robbery with violence.

Black was convicted Thursday of robbing Gordon Brown, 27, Esquimalt, of an Indian calendar $40 cash during a drinking party at the Station Hotel Jan. 27.

The magistrate said he was aware that excessive consumption of liquor contributed towards the offence, but this, he said, was no excuse for committing theft.

He noted that Black had a criminal record.

APPEARANCES DECEIVING

Oak Bay Tax Rate Not Really Bargain

Taxes may seem lower in house in Victoria, but $12,000 in Oak Bay.

Everyone knows you pay more for a home in Oak Bay, he explained.

That extra $2,000 capital expenditure, if invested at 6 per cent, would bring an after-tax income of $320 a year.

Add that to the Oak Bay taxes on the house and you will find a car with a licence was under suspension.

Alfred Joyce, 60, a successful businessman, told a court of revision today.

His explanation cropped up during an unsuccessful appeal by a Victorian against his assessment on the grounds that his neighborhood was ugly enough to deserve a lower rate.

Mr. Joyce said a $10,000

tax bill in Victoria will cost more than $12,000 in Oak Bay.

BIG FORTUNE IN GOLD BANKED BY DALAI LAMA

NEW DELHI (AP)—The exiled Dalai Lama has deposited in Calcutta banks a sizeable fortune in gold which he sent out of Tibet ahead of the Chinese Communists, authoritative sources said Thursday.

Several hundred multi-loads of gold bars were sent from Tibet when the Chinese invaded in 1951. The gold was hidden in the Gangtok mountain-top capital of Sikkim.

Last month the gold was moved out of Gangtok in the early hours of the morning by truck and flown at sunrise from a nearby airport to Calcutta.

Deportee's Wife Queries Appeal

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—The wife of Weldon Chan, whose attempts to have a deportation order against him lifted were rejected by the British Columbia Supreme Court Thursday, says she doubts whether the case is worth appealing.

"It is a lot of trouble," said Mrs. Alice Chan. "I don't want to go back to Hong Kong because the pay there is very little and there are too many people."

"But we could go to England; I don't know if they her husband, and lawyer Harry Fan want to try again. I suppose we will try again."

LOCAL BRIEFS

A faulty gas range vent opening into a second floor wall of Apt. 9 at 1122 View caused flames to burn into the attic shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

City firemen said damage was moderate to the wall and an adjoining bathroom.

"Horsing around" in his friend's car sent Anthony Robert Turner, 19, of 952 Richmond, into city police court Thursday charged with interfering with a driver's control.

He pleaded guilty and was fined $20.

Police said a lot of noise was coming from the car in which Turner was a passenger. When it was checked, the driver said Turner kept switching off the ignition key and pulling on the hand brake.

"I was just horsing around," police quoted Turner.

Ken A. Calder, president of Merchant Cartage Company Limited, made the remark following discussions on new truck licence fees for 1960.

"We've got the sickest industry in B.C.," he added.

Provincial government licences for light and medium trucks will increase by an estimated 32 per cent effective March 1 and on bigger trucks the increase may be as much as 228 per cent.

Royal Oak Burial For RCAF Pilot

Burial took place recently in Royal Oak of Flt-Lieut. Dale A. Hughes, who died suddenly in Toronto, aged 41.

Mrs. Hughes lives here at 145 Wildwood Avenue. The couple were en route from Bermuda to Winnipeg when death occurred. They had vacationed in Bermuda following his illness.

Born in the Maritimes, Flt-Lieut. Hughes graduated in 1940 from Mount Allison University and was an RCAF pilot during the Second World War.

He had since been stationed at Camp Borden, Ont., MacDonald, Man., and Winnipeg.

A military funeral was held at the RCAF chapel in Winnipeg with Supt. Edm. P. D. Rose officiating.

Survivors include the widow, Isabel; three sons, Robert, 8, William, 6, and John, 4; and his mother, Mrs. John W. Hughes of Saskatoon.

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Convict author Caryl Chessman's attorney pleaded today that the "red light bandit" should not be sent to the gas chamber Feb. 19 without a new full-scale appeal hearing.

The Appellate Court will rule on the case Monday morning.

Boy Gets 3 Years for Bomb Scare

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A 12-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to creating a bomb scare today was sentenced to three years in a boys' industrial home in juvenile court.

The boy told the court he had placed a call to the board of school trustees telling them he had planted a bomb in an elementary school here.

Ottawa Approves Trial Mall Plan

OTTAWA (UPI) — Civic officials decided today to build a trial modified "shopping mall" in the capital this year.

A meeting between Board of Control and interested merchants decided to close off two individual blocks of Sparks Street, a block from Parliament Hill, for a 3½-month trial.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An intercontinental range Titan missile went out of control and exploded in flight today, 57 seconds after it was launched. It left a huge ball of fire and smoke.

Trade Deficit Shows Big Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians imported commodities worth $475,100,000 more than they exported last year.

This was an 80-per-cent increase from the 1958 trade deficit of $264,100,000, but was well below the record $842,300,000 in 1956.

However, trading in the last quarter of the year produced an export balance of $22,900,000. It was the first balanced final-quarter since 1954.

Figures published today by the bureau of statistics show the year's imports totalling $5,654,700,000 and exports of $5,179,600,000.

Final-quarter imports were $1,434,700,000 against exports of $1,457,600,000.

The bureau said 67.8 per cent of Canada's imports came from the United States last year, compared with 68.8 per cent the previous year. Meanwhile, the percentage from the United Kingdom rose to 10.5 from 10.1.

On the export side, the United States was the market for 61.9 per cent of total exports, compared with 59.1 per cent in 1958. But the percentage of Canadian exports to United Kingdom declined to 15.4 from 15.9.

Imports from U.S. totalled $3,832,200,000 last year, compared with $3,552,200,000 in 1958, and $948,300,000 in the

Allies In, Rebels Out Of Cabinet

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle today strengthened his cabinet by promoting his steadfast supporters after ousting Jacques Soustelle, chief spokesman for the AP German rightists.

The expected cabinet reshuffle was brought on by the crisis which followed the rightist insurgent rising in Algeria.

Also ousted was Bernard Cornet-Gentille, minister of communications, who like Soustelle, had wanted to compromise with the rebellious French settlers.

Those were the only two ministers leaving the cabinet, but altogether seven ministers were eliminated or shifted.

The new men named to the cabinet are: Louis Terrenoire, head of the Gaullist Union for

New 'Snow Goose' Rocket Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Defence Research Board plans to launch next year a new high-altitude research rocket called the "Snow Goose," informants said today.

The rocket will be a follow-on to the "Black Brant" rocket, four of which were fired last fall from Fort Churchill, Man.

The "Snow Goose," it is planned, will be essentially the same as the "Black Brant" except that it will reach a higher altitude.

Airliner Crashes, Burns

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — A four-engined DC-4 Bolivian Lloyd Airlines plane crashed and burned in the Andes Mountains today, killing 59 of 60 persons aboard. Miraculously, a four-month-old infant survived.

The dead included 55 passengers and four crew members. The passengers included 10 children, the only one of whom to survive was a baby identified as Francisco Vasquez.

The crash, which occurred during a flight from the city of Cochabamba to La Paz, was the worst tragedy in the history of Bolivian civil aviation.

CRASHES AFTER TAKEOFF

The plane crashed a few minutes after takeoff from Cochabamba.

Most if not all those aboard were believed to be Bolivians. No passenger list was available immediately.

The plane was piloted by Joaquin Lobos, the airline's chief pilot with years of experience flying over this country's rugged mountain terrain.

1960's Toll

NEW YORK (CP) — The crash of a Bolivian airliner at La Paz, Bolivia, today, with 60 persons, was the fifth commercial aviation disaster of the year. It brought the death toll to 246.

The previous accidents were:

Jan. 6 — A National Airlines plane crashed near Bolivia, N.C., killing 34 persons.

Jan. 18 — A Capital Airlines plane crashed near Holdcroft, Va., killing 50.

Jan. 24 — A Scandinavian jet airliner crashed near Ankara, Turkey, killing 42.

Jan. 21 — A Colombian airliner crashed in Jamaica, killing 60.

Bomb Scares Delay Airliners

CHICAGO (AP) — Departure of two airline flights, with a total of more than 100 passengers, were delayed for several hours Thursday by bomb scares, both by passengers.

A Texas cattle-man, boarding a Milwaukee-bound plane at Midway Airport, was reported by an airline employee to have remarked to his wife: "Well, I've got a bomb. Shall I carry it with me or check it?"

The 25 passengers were ordered from the plane, and it was taxied out onto the field some distance from the buildings.

Louis Allis Jr., 44, who had touched off the scare, when questioned, insisted he meant the remark as a joke.

Shortly after the incident at Midway, police and FBI agents were summoned to the airport.

More firings of the "Black Brant" are planned before the "Snow Goose" launching.

The rockets fired last fall reached an altitude of some 70 miles. The "Snow Goose" is full of research instruments to study the outer atmosphere.

The "Black Brant" is a project to test solid propellant propellants developed by the strutments.

FRANCE'S A-BLAST TUESDAY?

PARIS (Reuters) — Explosion of France's first atomic bomb is imminent, according to informed quarters here, and some unconfirmed reports say it may take place as early as next Tuesday.

All is reported ready for the first blast from the top of a steel tower at the secret test site in the depths of the Sahara.

Weather conditions are expected to be suitable in a matter of days.

$50,000 HOLE IN ONE — 'I CRIED A LITTLE'

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Joe Campbell, New York City pro, today scored the first hole-in-one, worth $50,000 in the Palm Springs $100,000 desert golf classic.

Campbell's ace came on the 205-yard, par three, fifth hole. He used a three iron.

Campbell was unable to contain himself. He jumped up and down on the green. "I guess I even cried a little," he said.

If no other pro duplicates his feat, Campbell will take all of the $50,000 prize. Should more than one pro make a hole-in-one, the pot will be divided.

Loser on the deal is Lloyds of London. The insurance company gambled a $4,000 policy fee against the $50,000 payoff.
